"We can but wonder as we test
The scheme of compensations;
Is happiness with drawbacks best,
Or grief with consolations."

United States Army major sets up a red and green light in Juarez and regulates the Mexican revolution on the well-known stop-and-go system.

Well, the same system has worked perfectly in putting an end to the daily battle of Dupont circle.

Another great advantage to the District taxpayers in locating their airport at Gravelly Point is that the Legislature at Richmond would take over all the trouble of passing laws and regulations to govern it.

It is encouraging to learn that a device has been perfected that can dissipate the thickest fog, as Congress will be with us now in less than a week.

Have you heard about the fashionable new dance just introduced in Diplomatic circles—the Stimson side-step?

We fear that the Canadian Minister can not stir up much excitement at the State Department over the "I'm Alone" case, all of its time now being occupied with a much more momentous "I'm Not Alone" case.

There's one good thing to be said in favor of a Mexican revolution—they haven't got around yet in that beleaguered country to teaching rifle practice in the female seminaries.

Northward the course of baseball takes its way;

Augusta yesterday, elsewhere today. Soon we shall hear the old familiar call—
Out here on Georgia avenue—"Play ball!"

The heat wave couldn't have collapsed any more suddenly if the Federal Reserve Board had issued a ukase against it.

Chicago gangsters raid a church and take up a collection of $7,000, which is more than any preacher was ever able to do.

"When that April with his showers swoots"

The drooping of March hath perched to the roof.

"Then," say our Merchants and Manufacturers, with Brother Chauvenet, "longer folk to go on pilgrimages." Here's hoping that on the pilgrimage everything will be boosted except the golf scores.

Speaking of "showers swoots," yesterday's certainly did swoot.

Looks as though Secretary Stimson has thrown the whole question of social rank into the grab-bag.

Meanwhile, in the matter of precedence in Washington, there are signs that the Administration is even less worried by the activities of Mrs. Grundy than by those of Mr. Grundy.

Things indeed have come to a pretty pass with Big Business if in order to get the kind of a tariff it wants it has to let the farmer in on the deal.

In framing the new Senate farm relief bill practically nothing has been decided except that the urban sucker will pay it.

The problem of counterfeit American money in Europe has now become so acute that much of it is said to be as worthless as the native article.

The crew of the I'm Alone are released, as the Government has been unable to obtain the necessary evidence against them. It will be awkward if Canada insists on our raising that ship from the ooze of the Gulf of Mexico.

Speaking of boosters, Vermont is coming down to show her products, maple sirup and marble, her other prize exhibit now being in Northampton.

If Senator Jones is so proud of his new law why does he feel under such a necessity of defending it?

The Delta Tau Delta boys at Charlottesville seem to be full of the Jeffersonian spirit.

King George is convalescing so rapidly that it is understood he will soon be smoking an underslung pipe.

What the boob, dodging automobiles as he skips to the street car landing, can't understand is why the Supreme Court can't give the Washington straphanger a five-cent fare.

Assistant District Attorney Camilleri sees as the trouble of announcing that the paid police dry informer who "will send a man to jail for $2.50" is the lowest form of animal life.

Some of the more timid foreign countries appear to be almost as much alarmed over the prospect of our tariff revision as the United States is.

CANADA VOICES SHARP PROTEST OVER I'M ALONE

Official Communication Challenges U. S. Right to Sink Ship.

EXPLANATION IN FULL ON POLICY DEMANDED

Pointed Inquiries Are Made on Riddling of Rum Boat by Cutter.

GOVERNMENT BELIEF IN RANDALL IS HINTED

Treaty of 1924 Recognizes 3-Mile Limit Only; People Are Incensed.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States, yesterday delivered to Secretary of State Stimson a formal communication from the Canadian government protesting against the sinking of the British-Canadian schooner I'm Alone on the high seas 300 miles offshore by gunfire from American cutters.

The Canadian ship was sent to the bottom last month and her captain and crew were released yesterday by the cutter in New Orleans, there being no charges sustained against them. Leon Mangay, a French citizen, lost his life when the American guns sank the ship and compelled the crew to swim for safety.

Mr. Massey remained closeted with Secretary Stimson for twenty minutes. He declined to comment on the note except to admit that it was a communication from his government on the subject of the I'm Alone. It is understood that the Canadian government has no objection to the note being made public.

Stimson Calls on Hoover. Secretary Stimson went to the White House after Mr. Massey's departure and remained half an hour with the President. Both President Hoover and Mr. Stimson have been expecting formal representations from the government of Canada on the case. It has been apparent for some days that public sentiment in Canada would demand an accounting for the methods employed in sinking a Canadian ship on the high seas with loss of life and that the Canadian government would be virtually compelled to make an international issue out of the matter.

The formal Canadian note is couched in the usual diplomatic language but makes some very pointed inquiries and calls upon the United States Government to provide the government of Canada with information as to what rights America intends to claim under the rum-smuggling treaty of 1924 and whether the sinking of the I'm Alone by gunfire on the high seas is a sample of future policy.

Action Is Challenged. Canada challenges the action of the American Coast Guard ships from several standpoints. The Canadian government's interpretation of international law and humanitarian practices does not conform to the American view as exemplified by the sinking of the Canadian schooner on the high seas.

In the first place the Coast Guard's contention that the I'm Alone was within an hour's steaming distance of the shore and therefore subject to be searched by the American cutter Wolcott is not conceded by Canada. Capt. Randall, of the I'm Alone, maintains that his ship was between 14 and 15 miles offshore when the cutter Wolcott signaled him to heave to, and the Canadian schooner could make only 13 knots.

From the Canadian standpoint the statement of Capt. Randall is an acceptable basis, as he was in a position

Porter Who "Found" Bomb Denies He Manufactured it

Discoverer of Explosive Firm Under Grilling in Roosevelt Case.

New York, April 9 (A.P.)—Questioned for hours today by postal inspectors on the possibility that he had addressed a "care" bomb to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt hoping to be rewarded when he "discovered" it himself, Thomas J. Callegry, porter in the New York general post office, stoutly affirmed his innocence. Suspicion first turned to Callegry when the inspectors discovered that the wrappings on the bomb, which the porter said he accidentally struck Sunday night, were not burned. Then the inspectors remembered that the harmless bomb recently was promoted when he discovered a bomb in the postoffice there and started an investigation into Callegry's affairs.

They found that he was a radio fan, which also linked in with their theory that he might have placed the package in the postoffice, because the harmless bomb was constructed partly from radio parts. He denied knowing anything of the bomb until it "exploded" under his feet.

Camalier Denounces Rum Spy "Ministers"

Tells Dry Group They Are Worst Type of Police Informer.

The worst type of paid police informers are those who characterize themselves as "ministers of the Gospel," Assistant United States District Attorney Renah F. Camalier declared last night in advocating the establishment of a force of Government agents to take the place of police spies. By this step Camalier predicted convictions in a majority of those cases now thrown out of court because of perjured and unreliable testimony.

Camalier, Dr. James M. Doran, Federal prohibition commissioner; United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover and Maj. Henry G. Pratt, Washington's new superintendent of police, were the principal speakers last night at a meeting of the Citizens Service Association, local "dry" organization, in the First Congressional Church.

"The paid police informers are the lowest form of individual we have in law enforcement today," Camalier said. "They are no help to prohibition enforcement. They are not men, they are creatures. It is not fair to the judge, jury, prosecutor or defendant to put cases made by common police informers in court."

"But worst of all," Camalier said, "are some of these paid informers who tell me they are ministers of the gospel when I ask them their occupation after they have told me they have made 'buis' from bootleggers and are ready to testify against them in court."

"It is most embarrassing to me and a disgrace to the church to have to call these men 'doctor' and 'reverend' when they take the witness stand," Camalier said.

Most of the large number of liquor cases nolle prossed each month in Police Court, Camalier pointed out, is due to the fact that they have been made by paid police informers and others whose testimony can not be believed. "The man or woman who will send a man to jail for $2.50, and that is what police informers are paid, as nothing but insidious creatures, who ought to be in jail. Thank God, that's where most of them end," Camalier said.

The assistant prosecutor declared the present high rate of convictions for liquor law violators in the courts of the National Capital will be raised materially only when a sufficient force of Government agents, who draw their pay regardless of how many people they send to jail on their testimony, are employed to make cases against bootleggers.

Dr. Doran said the outlook for law enforcement never was as bright as it

CAPITAL AIR FIELD SITE IS ONLY ISSUE

Congressional Board Realizes Need; Gravelly Point Not Ready for Years.

CHILLUM LOCATION URGED

A municipal airport for the National Capital will be recommended by the congressional airport commission, it appeared yesterday, but where it will be is a question that is going to require a lot of time for consideration. When the airport commission concluded its initial hearing yesterday, it was apparent that the members realized the need for an airport here. Virtually every witness predicted that the city would be an important junction for air transportation.

As for the question of where the airport should be, it was evident that the commission was far from being decided on any particular site. If there were any favorites, however, they were the so-called Gravelly Point and Chillum sites.

Gravelly Point is a water-covered stretch on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, opposite East Potomac Park, and the Chillum site is a farm and wood area lying between Brookland and Takoma Park. Engineers estimate that it would require three years to fill the Gravelly Point site and have it ready for operation. While not very much is known about the Chillum site, there is no question but that it could be made ready in less time and for less money.

Following yesterday's hearing Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, the chairman, said he was thoroughly convinced that Washington should have a real airport. The big question in his mind, he said, was whether the city could afford to wait for three, four or five years for the completion of Gravelly Point. He was wondering, he said, whether it would not be better to establish an airport in shorter time on the outskirts of the city, and perhaps develop Gravelly Point at a later date. In summing up,

GERMAN CABINET'S FALL IS IMMINENT

Socialist Opposition to Plans for New Cruiser Herald Mueller's Downfall.

CRISIS EXPECTED TODAY

Berlin, April 9 (U.P.)—Authoritative statements that there was grave danger of the fall of the Chancellor Hermann Mueller cabinet, were followed tonight by unofficial reports in Reichstag circles that the cabinet would be convened tomorrow in special session after which it would be expected to resign.

The Socialist party's decision to oppose unilaterally the cabinet party demands for a second cruiser appropriation, it was said, had left no loophole for the chancellor's retreat from the present situation.

Gen. Caraveo Sweeps Up From South; Departs With All Troops.

Stand in Hills Foreseen; Naco Quiet; Federals Enter Chihuahua City.

Juarez, Mexico, April 9 (U.P.)—Surrender of Juarez, held by Mexican rebels since they captured the city in a bloody conflict of the revolution on March 7, was arranged tonight.

Actual delivery of the city to Mexican Consul General Llorens by Gen. Marcelino Murrieta, rebel military commander, awaited approval of President Portes Gil. Llorens was attempting to reach the presidency by telephone to receive the authority to take over the important port of entry.

Terms of the surrender were practically unconditional, but they were specified after about 2,000 rebel soldiers had been evacuated so they provided for surrender of only 125 soldiers, the normal strength of the Juarez garrison.

The soldiers who were evacuated were taken on two trains to Casas Grandes, where they intend to make their last stand against the federals in the high Sierra Mountains.

Panic Follows Looting.

Panic reigned in the city as the rebels moved out. All the prisoners in the city jail fled when police abandoned it. Learning they were without police protection, merchants and saloon men boarded up their windows and stood guard in their business places with rifles, fearing that looting would start immediately. A whiskey warehouse was entered by men who used the police patrol wagon to remove a barrel of liquor.

At 8:30 p. m. Gen. Marcelino Caraveo's heavily loaded troop train started out of the Juarez yards on the Northwestern line. There were nearly 30 cars loaded with soldiers, horses, women, children, ammunition, an airplane on a flat car, and several tank cars of gasoline. There was a locomotive at each end.

Al Coenen, American airplane mechanic, was a prisoner on the train. He was under guard and told newspaper men that rebels kidnaped him this afternoon in a Juarez cafe to work on their planes. Coenen was employed by the Standard Airlines in El Paso.

Lindbergh Overdue In Flight to U. S.

Check at Border Airports Fails to Bare Trace of Noted Flier.

San Antonio, Tex., April 9 (A.P.)—A check late tonight of practically all airports along the Texas border failed to reveal any trace of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who took off at 12:20 p. m. today from Mexico City for the United States after a visit with his fiancée, Miss Anne Morrow.

Reports from Chapultepec Castle in Mexico City said the colonel crossed the Mexican border at Piedras Negras to Eagle Pass, Tex., but the sheriff's office at the Texas town stated no airplanes had passed over or landed there.

Late tonight Kelly Field and other Texas airports were still illuminated in event the flier should desire to land. There was no evidence of anxiety among officials as none had been advised regarding the aviator's plans. He recently has been overdue on several flights. The flier is believed en route to New York City to pay his tribute to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, whose body will arrive there Saturday from France.

British Polo Captain Against U. S. Is Dead

London, April 9 (A.P.)—Capt. John Pitt Denning, who captained the British Army Polo Team against the United States Army in 1925, was found shot dead in a hotel here tonight. A revolver lay beside him.

Capt. Denning also was a member of the British Team which competed at Meadowbrook in September, 1927. He was one of the Britain's eight goal players.

GEN. DAWES CHOSEN AS ENVOY TO BRITAIN

White House Silent, However, Until London Announces His Acceptability.

WELL LIKED IN ENGLAND

(Associated Press.) Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes has been selected by President Hoover as Ambassador to Great Britain, and formal announcement awaits only word from London that he is acceptable to the British government.

While White House officials declined to discuss the matter in any way, it became known yesterday that Gen. Dawes' name has been presented to the British foreign office through the American Embassy, as is the usual custom before a diplomatic appointment is made.

Friends of both the administration and the general have no doubt that the appointment will be acceptable to the British, and formal announcement that the former Vice President will succeed Alanson B. Houghton, of New York, is expected within a few days.

Gen. Dawes now is in Santo Domingo as head of a mission reorganizing the finances of the West Indian republic and he will complete that work before proceeding to England.

Negotiations looking to the sending of the general to the London post began while Mr. Dawes still was Vice President and Herbert Hoover was President-elect.

As Ambassador in London Gen. Dawes will have one outstanding opportunity for constructive diplomatic effort. Succeeding Washington administrations have sought unsuccessfully thus far to round out and complete the Washington naval limitations agreement so as to curb competitive construction of classes of warships other than battleships and airplane carriers.

The efforts of President Coolidge failed at the three-power conference in Geneva.

TAMMANY WILL HAIL WALKER AS LEADER

Garfare Ruling Lifts Mayor to Leadership of New York Politics.

LOST OUT, IT WAS FEARED

New York, April 9 (A.P.)—Mayor James J. Walker has ridden into the hood of Tammany Hall and city politics on the 5-cent fare decision, political leaders agree unanimously.

The shift in the political fortunes of the slim, dapper little man in city hall came so quickly that political watchers find it parallel only in the drawing of a royal flush in a poker game, or discovering oil in the old well in the back yard.

The mayor came into office four years ago under most auspicious circumstances. Four weeks ago the politicians were outpoken in their opinion that the mayor had thrown away his chances. They agreed that he was a charming fellow, but said he had not earned another nomination; that he had been too indifferent to his job.

Then things began to happen. George W. Oliver, head of Tammany Hall, resigned, a thing that looked like disaster for the man who wrote, "Will You Love in December as You Do in May?"

Walker was in a hole, the Tammany district leaders reached a deadlock and turned for help and a compromise to the "Big Four" of the hall, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, surrogate James A. Foley and Walker. More bad news for Walker, the political wisecracker said, for that put Smith on top.

Then along came the United States Supreme Court's 5-cent-fare decision, and politicians confessed the sudden reaction was astounding.

New York had been educated on that issue for ten years. Former Mayor John F. Hylan was elected twice on it. But when the break came the benefit went to Walker, because it was pointed out, "Walker did it," he "wins the election."

Father and Son Contract Governing Marriage Valid

Deductions From Income Tax of Sums Set Aside for Boys Who Keep Agreement, Is Upheld by U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Richmond, Va., April 9 (A.P.)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today handed down an opinion in which it was ruled that a contract entered into between Louis Cohen and his three sons requiring the sons to work faithfully for the father and to marry Jewish girls approved by the elder Cohen, was valid and that money Louis Cohen, of Baltimore, charged off his income tax as credited to the son's accounts under the agreement was legitimately reported. The decision was given on a petition to review the decision of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, which held that Cohen had no legal right to make such an agreement.

The record in the case shows that the elder Cohen sought to insure by contract not only the business but the happiness of his sons, Jacob, Samuel and Benjamin.

This odd business-marital contract, entered into January 1, 1919, required Mr. Cohen to pay the boys 25 per cent of the net earnings from a wall paper business owned by the father. The money was kept to their accounts and they could not draw from the accounts "until such time as each of them shall marry, at which time the amount standing to the credit of said son or sons shall be paid over to him together with interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum."

"Provided, however, that it is required of each son that when he or they do marry, that they marry a contract marriage with a party of Jewish faith and Jewish parentage, subject to

Sir Esme Howard Calls Upon Diplomats to Meet Today.

PARLEY MAY RESTORE STANDING OF HOSTESS

Letter to Ambassador Asks "Courtesy" for Sister of Curtis.

SOCIAL RULES CALLED OUT OF STATE DOMAIN

Vice President and Others in Controversy Refuse to Make Statements.

(Associated Press.) Secretary Stimson, of the State Department, late yesterday washed his hands of Washington's social row, placing upon the Diplomatic Corps the full responsibility for the seating of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and designated hostess of Vice President Curtis, at diplomatic dinners.

Answering the protest of the Vice President against the ruling of former Secretary Kellogg that Mrs. Gann ranked below the wives of foreign diplomats at the dinner, Mr. Stimson said the problem was one for the diplomats and not for the State Department to decide.

Shortly after the decision was made public, a meeting of the Diplomatic Corps was called for today to consider it.

There were indications that the heads of foreign missions would abide by any decision that might be reached at the forthcoming gathering.

Sir Esme Remains Silent.

At the British Embassy it was said that Sir Esme Howard, the Ambassador from London, who, as dean of the Diplomatic Corps, transmitted the request for a ruling on the question to the State Department had no comment to make.

Vice President Curtis likewise declined to discuss Mr. Stimson's decision. Ambassador Davies, of China, who is giving a dinner to the Chilean minister of finance tomorrow night to which the Vice President and Mrs. Gann are invited, also would say nothing.

It was the opinion of a number of the diplomatic group that, in view of Mr. Stimson's action, the Diplomatic Corps would decide to accord Mrs. Gann every recognition extended to the Vice President's wife. No one, however, would speak for publication, and, as a result, interest immediately was directed toward today's meeting and also the dinner of the Chilean Ambassador.

Stimson Calls at White House. Secretary Stimson, who was confronted with the problem a week ago, announced his decision to the press late yesterday after a call at the White House.

In a letter to the Vice President, Mr. Stimson discussed more fully the problem raised by the Kellogg ruling and made it clear that hereafter the State Department would decline to determine questions of precedence among American officials and "general social precedence in Washington." He took the position that such questions were outside the domain of the State Department.

Mr. Curtis, usually reticent in public life, last night kept the silence he has maintained since he made public his protest to Mr. Stimson against the ruling of former Secretary Kellogg. Friends have no doubt, however, that the Vice President will be guided in his future participation in social events by the attitude to be shown toward his sister and hostess.

Curtis Firm on Stand.

The Vice President is firm in his determination that his sister share equal recognition with himself.

Mr. Kellogg announced his ruling the day before he left office. It aroused the Vice President, who took the position

MRS. INMAN MERRY OVER LOVE LETTERS

Asserts That She Encouraged Steele to Write Perfidious Notes to Stir Jealousy.

WANTED MATE TO RETURN

At its meeting Monday night, the Diplomatic Corps refused to adopt a plan submitted to them by Sir E. Howard at the request of several diplomats voluntarily according to Mrs. Gann the same social status as the Vice President. The majority on a vote of the corps was found to be opposed to the proposal on the ground that the diplomats could not override Secretary Kellogg or give precedence to Mrs. Gann above that laid down by the State Department.

Secretary Stimson's decision was a blow to social Washington, which has always looked to the State Department for rulings as to how guests should be seated at table. This voluntary service of the department has grown up over a period of years and society matrons were in a quandary last night as to where they will obtain their rulings in the future.

Stimson Note to Howard. The letter of Secretary Stimson to the British Ambassador follows: "I have received from you this afternoon the memorandum of the heads of diplomatic missions in respect to the question of precedence covered by the letter of my predecessor, Mr. Kellogg, written March 22, which was referred to me recently by the Vice President with the request that I should review it."

As I have written to the Vice President I believe that while Mr. Kellogg's letter correctly states the custom which has prevailed during recent years, neither Mr. Kellogg nor any other Secretary of State has intended to make any official ruling as to the precedence in which American officials should be seated at the homes of the members of the Diplomatic Corps, but that such decision rests wholly within the discretion of the members of the corps themselves.

It should be glad, therefore, if you would kindly convey to your colleagues in reply to their memorandum that any course which they take in reference to such matters will meet with no objection on the part of the State Department, and that any courtesy which they choose to show the Vice President and Mrs. Gann will be most agreeable to me."

Memorandum of Howard. The memorandum of the Diplomatic Corps to the Secretary, which was delivered by Sir E. Howard at the request of the corps follows: "The heads of diplomatic missions residing in Washington have noted with much regret that a question of precedence which was never raised by any of them and with which they have no diplomatic mission has been brought to the attention of the Vice President and the State Department, and in order that the precedence accorded to Mrs. Gann could be maintained by the State Department, it is necessary that the Secretary of State should be good enough to inform them whether they understand to have been the previous ruling of the State Department is still upheld, and what course is desired by the State Department in this matter. It is unnecessary to assure the Secretary of State that whatever ruling he may make will be entirely acceptable to the Diplomatic Corps."

Secretary Writes Curtis. In his letter to Vice President Curtis, the Secretary said: "Dear Mr. President: You have asked me to examine and review a letter written to you by my predecessor, Mr. Kellogg, dated March 22, in response to your letter of March 19, stating that you had designated your sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, as your official hostess and expressing your desire that she be accorded recognition as such."

"I think that Mr. Kellogg's letter correctly states the custom which has prevailed during recent years, but my thought rather runs in another direction in the whole matter, while the State Department has the responsibility of determining precedence among foreign representatives themselves, it is the duty of the State Department to establish the dates on which they were accredited to this Government and, therefore, of their respective seniorities. It is no authority to determine questions of precedence among American officials nor of general social precedence in Washington, and it is my belief that it should no longer assist in such questions. I am, therefore, instructing the department to give no further advice or suggestions in such matters."

"I realize from what you now tell me that in your original letter of March 19, you did not intend to ask

Lester L. Hilleary, 32 years old, of 914 Madison street northwest, received minor injuries last night when he was struck by an automobile while crossing at Georgia and Illinois avenues northwest.

He was treated by Dr. R. S. Osborn, of 706 K street northwest, for body bruises. Mrs. Pearl E. Shopp, of 450 Deland street northwest, was the operator of the machine that struck Hilleary, police report.

Charles Connor, 50 years old, of 1406 Meridian street northwest, was knocked down and injured by an automobile last night at Twelfth street and Florida avenue northeast.

Joseph D. Mackey, of 2020 Sixteenth street northwest, operator of the machine that struck Connor, took him to the Casualty Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations to the face and head. His condition was undetermined last night.

for any official ruling, but merely to record your designation of Mrs. Gann as your hostess; and we both agree that for the department to enter into such questions at all is inconsistent with the important governmental duties which it has to perform, and that it is much better for social questions to be settled by the social community itself. I have received a pleasant call from the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, who has explained to me the personal attitude of himself and his colleagues on this question; and I have no doubt that in this way and by such unofficial action, this matter will work out with the fullest courtesy to you and your official hostess."

"I realize from what you now tell me that in your original letter of March 19, you did not intend to ask

SOUTH'S DRYS SEEK LAW BOARD BERTHS

Dixie Representation on Enforcement Commission Urged on Hoover.

CANNON ADVISE AWAITED

(United Press.)

Southern drys are seeking representation on President Hoover's law enforcement investigating commission because of the prominent part they consider they played in Mr. Hoover's election. Their desire for representation has been conveyed to the President.

Announcement of the commission had been expected by this time. Intimations at the White House immediately after the administration opened were that the commission would be announced within 30 days.

It appears probable now that the announcement will not come much before the last of this month. President Hoover is expected to confer before he announces the commission with Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Richmond, one of the leaders of the anti-Smith dry Democrats in the South. Cannon now is in Europe. He will sail for the United States from England April 17. From Egypt, Cannon called President Hoover several days ago, suggesting the appointment of a man who had been a prohibitionist on the commission.

Drys contend there are many able Southern business men, supporters of the President, who would be willing and eager to serve on the law enforcement investigating commission. They hope for a representative from their ranks.

Bishop Cannon is expected to urge the appointment of a Southerner to the President, who would enter the commission as a "professional dry," that is, leaders of prohibition organizations, just as it will contain no "proteges" of the leaders of anti-prohibition organizations. President Hoover desires, it is understood, to steer clear of any sharp partisans.

Colored Man Is Urged For Crime-Study Task

President Hoover has been requested by the Association for the Advancement of Colored People to appoint a colored man on his proposed law enforcement commission on the ground that the colored man is not only a victim of slack or nonenforcement of law. Several names have been suggested, among them William J. Lewis, of Boston; Perry E. Lewis, of Cleveland, and Judge James A. Cobb, of the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia.

Colored leaders who have taken this subject up with the President assert they want an opportunity to disprove the frequent charge that the criminal habits of the colored man made necessary for the South to unite for the Nation-wide dry laws.

U. S. Lets Boy, 8, Enter; Others in Family Wait

Chicago, Ill., April 9 (A.P.).—If Isaac Rosenblum, 8 years old, studies immigration tables carefully, he may be able to determine approximately when each of four other members of his family will join him in Chicago.

Isaac arrived yesterday. The rest of the family he left in Havana, each to await a turn for entering the United States.

The difficulty lies in the complexity of nationality. For instance, Isaac's father was born in Palestine, his mother in Russia, his little sister in England and his baby brother in Cuba. Isaac himself is a native of Alexandria, Egypt—which explains Isaac's reached America first, the Egyptian immigration quota being greater than the Egyptian popularity of immigration.

Meantime, Isaac is in the care of an uncle.

CHARGE RIDICULOUS, SAYS MRS. KENNEDY

Pastor, Asking $50,000, Seeks Publicity, Adds Mother of Evangelist.

SHE QUOTES HIS LETTERS

Portland, Ore., April 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Minnie M. Kennedy, defendant in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought in Seattle by the Rev. H. H. Clark, declared here today that "the things he says in that suit are ridiculous."

Mrs. Kennedy, mother of Almerie Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, charged that Clark is seeking "only money and publicity."

Clark, on the other hand, declared he had a "conclusive evidence" at the trial to back up his claims. He alleges Mrs. Kennedy obtained a reluctant promise of marriage from him after an intensive courtship in which she promised to finance a tabernacle in Seattle and a gospel ship for an Alaskan tour.

The Kennedy suit was filed in the district court here after an intensive courtship in which she promised to finance a tabernacle in Seattle and a gospel ship for an Alaskan tour.

Mrs. Kennedy, while deploring the action instituted against her said "it's almost worth a little trouble to hear so many friends and especially from my baby, Almerie, telling me not to worry."

Mrs. McPherson, who has been estranged from her mother, assured Mrs. Kennedy by wire that she would support her in fighting the suit.

Saying she aided Clark and fed him when he was hungry, Mrs. Kennedy declared she had been "wary" of him because of "his rambling speech and fits of depression."

Mrs. Kennedy had a stack of letters from Clark. From them she quoted such phrases as "I've sold my Bible for 50 cents but I'll keep my gun"—"I have

DRY REFERENDUMS IN 2 LEGISLATURES

Illinois Act Seen Assured by Amendment Placed on Seizure Repealer.

MISSOURI GETS MEASURE

Springfield, Ill., April 9 (A.P.).—A referendum on the wet and dry issue in Illinois was declared to be virtually assured tonight by anti-prohibition leaders, following a day of legislative jockeying in the State General Assembly.

An anti-prohibition measure, providing for repeal of a search and seizure act, to which the referendum clause was attached, was passed by third reading in the lower house by a vote of 78 to 61, one vote short of the number necessary to send the bill to the senate for confirmation. A number of avowed wet representatives were absent when the roll was called, but have announced they will be present when the measure is put to a final vote.

In support of their claims, wet leaders pointed out that although the repeal measure appeared doomed previous to attachment of the referendum amendment, a number of conservative members announced themselves as favorable to it as soon as the clause was added. Little opposition to the measure is expected by them to be encountered in the senate.

Senators Weber and O'Grady, sponsors of the referendum clause, told the assembly it would afford the people of Illinois an opportunity to express their opinion of prohibition, an "opportunity never given them before."

"Submit this to voters," Weber promised, "and if they vote it down there will never be another wet measure submitted to this body."

A resolution looking toward a State-wide referendum on repeal of the eighteenth amendment was introduced in the Missouri senate today by Senator Joseph Brogan (Democrat), St. Louis.

The resolution, if adopted, would direct the governor to memorialize Congress, asking for submission of a proposition to repeal the eighteenth amendment. It also proposes to submit the question of repeal to a State-wide vote, asking for submission under the State referendum laws.

A similar resolution has been prepared for introduction in the house by Representative Huber, of St. Louis.

H. J. Cochran New Head Of Bankers Trust Co.

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Henry J. Cochran, who celebrated his fiftieth birthday yesterday, today was elected president of the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, succeeding A. A. Tiney, who becomes vice chairman of the board of directors, a newly created position.

AUTHOR PLANS CURB ON JONES LAW FOES

Senator Says Pardons Will Be Granted If Unjust Penalties Are Imposed.

ASSAILS LAWYER GROUP

Cleveland, Ohio, April 9 (United Press).—A promise of pardons in cases where "harsh or unjust severe penalties" are inflicted under the Jones law from "caprice or a desire to discredit the law," was made in a radio address here tonight by the law's author, Senator Wesley Jones (Republican), Washington.

Jones did not say whether he was speaking for the President, who alone has power to issue pardons for Federal prisoners.

The Washington senator said Americans pride themselves on "being good sports," and that they should know it now in respect to prohibition and the Jones law. The whole tenor of his speech was to minimize the severity of the law, about which he said much misinformation has been spread.

"The friends of prohibition and law enforcement have more ground to complain of the leniency of the act and large discretion given to the courts," he declared.

Assails "Grandstand Play." "Judges are, in the main, merciful and sympathetic, as well as just and learned men. If they err at all, it is more apt to be on the side of leniency than on the side of harshness."

"Furthermore, no just prosecutor is going to ask the court to give an unjust and unreasonably severe sentence, and if a harsh and unjust severe penalty is inflicted from caprice or a desire to discredit the law, the participating power can and will intervene."

Jones denounced the group of New York lawyers who have organized to oppose the law, declaring that they "violate the oath they have solemnly taken, encourage and abet law violations, and repudiate and undermine the basis upon which the stability of this Republic and the rights and liberties of our people."

These lawyers claim, the senator said, that they will defend poor and indigent persons. This, he added, is not necessary, as courts appoint lawyers to defend such people. He described their action as "grand stand play."

Law Aimed at Bootleggers. "Do they want to discredit the law because they fear they may be deprived of their liquor?" he asked. "Why don't they have the courage to come out openly and boldly for the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment?"

President Hoover, Jones declared, stated it was the right of those who do not favor the law to work for its repeal openly. These lawyers, he said, should take care.

Jones cited as the type of mainframe violation the reports that a school boy who had half a pint of liquor could be jailed for five years and fined $10,000, which is the maximum sentence provided. He explained that the Jones act does not deal with possession.

"This act deals only with manufacture, sale, and transportation, the importation and the exportation of liquor for beverage purposes," Jones said. These are the express prohibitions of the eighteenth amendment.

The law, he said, is aimed at bootleggers. "Such are entitled to no mercy and should be beyond the sympathy of those who oppose prohibition, as well as those who favor it." is today. Prohibition will be a problem for many years to come, he said, but conditions are not as deplorable as people would paint them.

"There is more talk than whisky," Doran stated.

United States District Attorney Rover predicted juries would not hesitate to convict violators of the prohibition laws because of the severity of the penalties in the Jones act. Juries are becoming stimulated and encouraged by the agitation for enforcement of all laws and will look upon violators of the Jones act in the same light as they do now on the murderer and robber, Rover said.

Maj. Pratt told members of the "dry" organization, who represented 75 Washington churches, that he would welcome any assistance they may be able to give him in enforcing the dry law in Washington. With the members of the organization pledged to report any violation of the liquor laws known to them, the chief of police said he could assure them their information would be acted upon immediately by members of his force.

The association last night inaugurated a drive for 5,000 new members.

Letters Judge Hardy Sent In M'Pherson Case Sought

Missives, Written During Hunt for Evangelist, Not Given to Managers of Impeachment Trial, Says Representative—Deputy Tells of Search for Woman.

Sacramento, Calif., April 9 (A.P.).—A Judge Carlos Hardy in connection with the investigation of the kidnapping story of Almerie Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, was started today at the request of the house board of managers prosecuting the jurist on impeachment charges.

The district attorney's office at Los Angeles was asked to make an immediate search for the letters, which Representative Walter J. Little, of the leadership, indicated it was hoped might throw some light on where Mrs. McPherson actually was during the time she reported she was in the hands of kidnappers three years ago.

Judge Hardy is being tried on charges of giving legal advice to the evangelist and accepting a $2,500 fee from her while serving on the bench.

The Los Angeles district attorney advised Little that he would look for letters not already turned over to the board of managers and forward photostatic copies. Little denied that any original letters had been stolen from his files. He said that, so far as he knew, none was delivered to him by the district attorney's office.

Judge Hardy took active part in his impeachment case for the first time today when he personally cross-examined Frank Dewar, former deputy sheriff of Los Angeles, relative to investigations of Mrs. McPherson's kidnapping story.

Dewar was placed on the stand by the prosecution to tell of transactions he had had with Judge Hardy which sent himself and Frank W. Modie, another former deputy sheriff, to the Mexican border in search of persons named as Mrs. McPherson's kidnappers.

After Dewar had testified that he had gone to Judge Hardy with information that the "kidnappers" were known by name the judge took the witness in hand, led him through details of his story and had him identify a note signed "Mary Wilson," a woman with whom Dewar said he conferred in Mexico during his investigation.

Dewar testified that an unnamed prisoner in the Los Angeles County Jail said that "Rose and Frank Berry" and "Steve" had been heard discussing plans to kidnap Mrs. McPherson and that he, Dewar, might obtain further information from Mary Montgomery, alias Mary Wilson, in Mexico.

Dewar said he transmitted this information to Judge Hardy and that the judge arranged with the Los Angeles sheriff to release the two deputies for the purpose of conducting an investigation. Dewar said Judge Hardy gave him two personal cards, each addressed to Superior Court judges in Imperial County, asking that they aid the investigators in any possible manner. Dewar said he could not produce the cards in evidence.

DISARMING URGED BY GENEVA BUREAU

Peace Organization Calls for Real Limitation by Coming Parley.

DELAY BY BRITISH IS SEEN

Geneva, April 9 (A.P.).—Since the Kellogg pact notably increases the feeling of international security, there is additional practical reason for hastening the work of disarmament, declares a manifesto issued today at the Geneva headquarters of the International Peace Bureau.

The manifesto urges all governments represented at the preparatory disarmament commission on April 15 to take positive steps justifying the early convocation of an international conference and insists that failure to do so will be interpreted by the peoples of the world as proof that the League of Nations and other institutions dedicated to the consolidation of peace are merely indulging in "window dressing."

English Election Barrier.

Because of the pending general election in England, the impression in Geneva is that little will be attempted at the forthcoming session of the commission to reach an agreement on outstanding naval difficulties.

The object of the preparatory commission is, however, merely to reach an accord on methods for limitation, an agreement on the types of warships to be subjected to limitation would be considered a big step.

It is reported that President Loucheur, of the commission, incorporating the German idea, will propose the creation of a subcommittee of great naval powers which will continue study of the problem after adjournment of the preparatory commission.

More than 3,000 memorials similar to the manifesto of the International Peace Bureau have reached the League of Nations. Most of them emanate from sections of the Socialist party in various parts of Europe which were urged by a Socialist conference in England to make a collective representation to the League.

Bernstorff Presents Views.

Starnberg, Germany, April 9 (A.P.).—Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States and now chairman of the German delegation to the League of Nations disarmament preparatory conference, today, on the eve of his departure for Geneva, expressed the opinion that the Kellogg pact must necessarily and logically be followed by world disarmament and the adoption of a general pact for settling all disputes by legal means.

Hopes for Progress.

In answer to questions regarding the forthcoming Geneva meeting, Count von Bernstorff said: "I haven't the faintest idea what the meeting will bring. I fervently hope for progress. An agreement on the subject of the impending British elections. The British delegation to the disarmament conference may feel that decisive steps should not be taken so as not to bind any future British cabinet whose complexion nobody can foresee. Technically, we are called together for a so-called second reading of the disarmament proposals. When we separated two years ago it was assumed that the Big Three—Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Minister Briand and Foreign Minister Stresemann—would meet while discussing the question, but this was not done either at Lugano or Geneva, as they had other worries. So we don't know where the other delegations stand on the matter of the second reading. All I can say is that I hope for progress."

Dental Society Hears Talk on Psychology

Dr. Fred A. Moss last night addressed the District of Columbia Dental Society at a meeting of the organization in the auditorium of George Washington University, 1335 H street northwest, on the subject "Psychology and the Seven Ages of Man."

Dr. D. Perry Hickling, District attorney and chairman of the public health committee of the Washington Board of Trade, opened the discussion on the subject and introduced Dr. Moss. Dr. C. A. Hawley also spoke on the topic. The president, Dr. C. Willard Cammiller, presided.

More Funds Are Sought For Burrville School

Although not successful in having more than $150,000 out of an appropriation of $180,000 used in construction of an addition to the Burrville School, and an auditorium placed on the ground level instead of beneath it, the Northeast Suburban Civic Association, which met last night in the school directed that the matter be taken up again with the Board of Education today.

The board also will be asked to make provision as soon as possible for a full time fifth grade in place of the part time instruction put in operation by removal of a portable school. A committee was appointed to secure material more suitable for road construction in Burrville than cinders, the association favoring macadam or concrete highways, and sidewalks similar to those in adjacent suburbs.

Virginia U. Fraternity Men Fight to Retain Charter

Officer and Member of Delta Tau Delta Chapter Sent to Confer With National Officials Over Charges of Permitting Whisky in Clubhouse.

Charlotteville, Va., April 9 (A.P.).

Following a meeting of Beta Iota Chapter, the University of Virginia chapter of Delta Tau Delta National Fraternity here tonight, Curtis E. Cuddy, of Roanoke, president, and Hamilton Scherret, of Richmond, Va., a senior member, left Charlottesville for New York for a conference with national officers of the fraternity.

This conference, it is understood, will be for the discussion of the charges brought by the arch chapter of the national organization, made in letters to alumni members, alleging Beta Iota Chapter has denied the national organization and administrative authorities of the University of Virginia relative to use of whisky in the fraternity clubhouse here.

Frank S. Hemmick, traveling secretary of the Arch Chapter, visited the Virginia chapter of the fraternity and reported to national headquarters of the organization that liquor was used in the fraternity house. Alumni of the fraternity have recently received letters announcing institution of proceedings toward withdrawal of the charter of Beta Iota, the University of Virginia chapter, said today that the chapter Chapter.

C. E. Cuddy, president of the local had not denied the administrative authorities of the university in the matter of liquor. He said the chapter, along with many other fraternities here, had signed an agreement forbidding the use of liquor in fraternity houses. This, he added, was done several weeks ago and so far as he knew was entirely satisfactory to university authorities. He described as unwarranted any interference of Arch Chapter officials so long as the situation is satisfactory to the university officials.

Suing Wife Accuses Farm Loan Official

Mrs. McHale Says Mate Was Cruel and Transferred His Affection.

Limited divorce and adequate maintenance from Vincent R. McHale, chief examiner of the Federal Farm Loan Board, was asked of the District Supreme Court in a suit filed yesterday on behalf of Mrs. Helen C. McHale, of 3110 Mount Pleasant street northwest.

Through her counsel, Bell, Marshall, Rice & Cunniff, Mrs. McHale declared her husband had been extremely cruel to her and asked the court to grant her custody of their seven children. They were married December 27, 1916, according to the complaint.

Shortly after their marriage, the wife stated, they established residence here and her husband began to evidence signs of dissatisfaction with married life. He found favor, she said, with a young lady employed in his office and then began to abuse his wife. She charges that he called her "illiterate," "uncultured," "ignorant" and that he was ashamed to introduce her to his friends and criticized her manner of house-keeping, McHale stated.

She stated that her husband had come of $8,000 a year from his governmental position.

Nine Washingtonians Will Share $177,500

Nine residents of Washington will share $177,500 in bequests from the estate of Olivia Eggleston Phelps Stokes, of New York, whose estate was estimated at $2,175,000 when filed for appraisal in the New York State tax transfer department yesterday.

Olivia E. P. Stokes, 2408 Massachusetts avenue northwest, a grandniece, receives the largest bequest, $82,500. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., and I. N. Phelps 2d, grandnephews, receive $20,000 each; Anson Phelps Stokes, nephew, receives $10,000. All three live at 1833 Rhode Island avenue address. Sarah Stokes Halkett, 1809 Phelps place northwest; William E. D. Stokes, Jr., Ellen Mason and Elida Bergendorf, all of 1523 Rhode Island avenue, also get $10,000 each, while Elizabeth Saul, same address, receives $5,000.

Woman Sues District; Negligence Is Charged

Charging negligence, Louise Langdon, of 2812 Twenty-sixth street northwest, entered suit for $10,000 damages against the District of Columbia yesterday in the District Supreme Court.

Through her counsel, William E. Leahy and Eugene B. Sullivan, the plaintiff stated she was walking along on the sidewalk, the District, she charged, failed to keep the pavement clean of wet and slippery substance and caused the fall, which seriously injured her.

Stage Costume's History Reviewed

J. P. S. Neligh Is Speaker at Conference of Community
Drama Guild.

J. P. S. Neligh, head of the Neighborhood House, last night gave a comprehensive review of the history of stage costumes at the meeting in McKinley High School, one of a week's conferences sponsored by the Community Drama Guild.

After Mr. Neligh's talk on costumes, those attending the conference were shown the equipment on the stage of the McKinley auditorium. Harold W. Snyder and Robert Byrne gave demonstrations of the use of the various curtains, drops and sets in connection with the scenic arrangements for plays.

Another of these Drama Guild meetings will be held tonight at the same place with Mrs. Grace Peters Johnson and Edward Muth giving demonstrations of make-up. Mrs. Marie Moore, Forest and Miss Pauline Oak will discuss pagentry. Barrett Prettymann will preside.

Man, 62, Knocked Down by Car.
Frank Gover, 62 years old, of 1523 Vermont avenue northwest, was knocked down yesterday morning by an automobile in front of 1515 K street northwest, operated by William E. ## WILBUR ACTS TO CUT DOWN OUTPUT OF OIL

Producers Are Asked to Unite on a Program of Conservation.

NEW FIELDS AFFECTED

(Associated Press.)
Secretary Wilbur moved yesterday to curb production on the Government oil fields—one the Kettleman area near Los Angeles, and the other in New Mexico, where the Texas company bored through sandy desert land to find petroleum.

In the case of the Kettleman field the Secretary asked four companies operating in the area to arrange a cooperative program which would conserve its petroleum in the ground instead of bringing it into a congested market. The Secretary of the Interior has the power to ask companies operating on Government land to cooperate as far as is considered reasonable in conserving natural resources.

The ruling affecting the newly discovered southwest New Mexico field was the result of a hearing held before the Secretary recently, concerning the operation of the Texas company on what is generally termed a "group development."

Decision to Set Precedent.
The company has drilled a number of wells over a wide area, and a number of permits issued to individuals who in turn asked the Texas company to perform the actual drilling work.

The decision in the Texas company case, which is expected to set a precedent under which other group operations will come, was that the company and qualified permittees are entitled to five leases from permits on which discovery of oil and gas had been made.

The Secretary also found that 15 permits were in good standing either because the statutory time limit had not elapsed or that drilling operations already under way justified extension. The remaining 58 permits were directed to be canceled.

Leases for One-Fourth of Area.
Under the present policy, the Secretary said, leases will be granted only for one-fourth of the area included in each permit which is the amount made mandatory under the leasing law. When it is determined to release the remaining areas, the permittees in each case will be entitled to preference right to such royalties and leasehold interests as may be prescribed under the law and regulations.

Secretary Wilbur said that the Kettleman field was an astonishing one and that it would "be a calamity to develop it now." The field has at present two wells on it 6 miles apart, both producing at a rate of 1,000 barrels a day. It is determined to release the remaining areas, the permittees in each case will be entitled to preference right to such royalties and leasehold interests as may be prescribed under the law and regulations.

Miss Lehman Is Singer
Before Jewish Women

An interpretative Negro spiritual recital by Miss Lehman, concert singer, of New York City, was given here to the auspices of the Council of Jewish Women at the Jewish Community Center yesterday. E. R. Woodson, an author, in an interpretative guidance, addressed the meeting. Miss Lehman included in her program "David, Come Play on Your Pipe," "Swanee," "Swinging Bread" and "It's Comin' Home."

Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss, president of the council, presided. Dr. Woodson gave the council valuable information in vocational guidance for use in training boys and girls in their work.

Druggist and Accountant Voluntary Bankrupts

Petitions in voluntary bankruptcy were filed yesterday by G. H. Norton, druggist and pharmacist, of 225 Upshur street northwest, and Mitchell Dolewicz, an accountant, of 6040 Daniels road northwest, in the District Supreme Court.

Through Attorneys Joseph A. Kaufman and S. F. McHugh, the druggist declared his liabilities at $5,206.81 and his assets at $2,701. Lewis, by his attorney, Charles M. Nash, listed his debts at $1,147.10 and stated he had no assets.

Race Track Upheld By Florida Cleric

Defends Sport at Miami
Club; Sees Gambling
Woven in Life.

Miami, Fla., April 9 (A.P.).—Pledging his whole-hearted support to horse racing as it is conducted by the Miami Jockey Club, Dr. Everett S. Smith, pastor of the First Christian Church and leader of a large men's Bible class here, came to the defense of racing as an amusement in an address before the Miami Ad Club today.

Dr. Smith denounced as poor citizens those who attempt to legislate their personal prejudices into the laws by "political manipulation."

Dr. Smith said that he had studied the Bible, but has never been able to define gambling from a biblical viewpoint. "I have never been able to distinguish between a $2 bet made at a pari-mutuel window and a $500 binder put up on a $100,000 piece of property. Every one of us was a gambler in 1925. Gambling is so closely interwoven with all phases and spheres of life that no human being can possibly define what is and is not right and put it into a law. The best that men can hope to do is reasonably and sympathetically to regulate and modify."

Great Falls Developing Expected This Month

Development of the area around Great Falls is expected to be launched late this month when a subcommittee of the Chamber of Commerce reports to the committee on the development of that region.

$20,000 Is Willed To Mrs. Townsend

Capital Woman Shares in Estate of Princess Clara Huntington Hatfield.

A bequest of $20,000 was made to Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, 1418 Twentieth street, of this city, in the will of Princess Clara Huntington Hatfield, it was disclosed yesterday by Max D. Steuer, counsel for the executor and residuary legatees, according to an Associated Press dispatch from New York City. The larger part of the estate, which consisted principally of a trust fund of $1,000,000 created by her father, the late Collis P. Huntington, California millionaire, was left to friends abroad.

The will sets aside $10,000 for the care of horses and animals owned by the princess. They are not to be sold, but are to be allowed to end their days free from labor, or to be put to death in merciful ways, according to a provision of the will.

H. De Crespigny, of Champion Lodge, England, and Henry Beauchamp Harrison, of Newington House, England, are named executors and are also the principal heirs. De Crespigny is to receive $500,000 and Beauchamp $150,000. Other bequests include $25,000 to Joseph Delghian Redding; $15,000 to Maitland Kersey, of London; $20,000 to Baroness Aliotti, of Villano, Italy, and $40,000 to Viscount Selby.

The princess died in London March 17.

Merchants Announce Annual Booster Tour

FARM RELIEF JUNE 1 IS GOAL OF CONGRESS

Hoover Anxious to Have Program Under Way to Help in Coming Harvest.

BILL DRAFT BEGINS TODAY

(Associated Press.)
Enactment of a farm relief bill before June 1 to carry out the desire of President Hoover that the program should be under way in time to help market the next harvest was set definitely as an objective yesterday by administration leaders.

The new farm measure will be presented simultaneously to the House and Senate shortly after receipt of Mr. Hoover's message giving his suggestions for farm aid and tariff revision. It is planned to have both houses start promptly on discussion of the bill to reach a final vote as soon as possible. Leaders of both houses are confident that the separate measures introduced on either side of the Capitol will meet with little delay. There is, however, some speculation as to the length of time that will be required to adjust differences between the two houses, as even the most optimistic doubt the probability of the Senate and House passing identical bills as was done three seasons ago in the case of the first vetoed McNary-Haugen bill.

Actual drafting of the new bill will be undertaken by the Senate agriculture committee today. Chairman McNary at that time will have the full membership of all farm plans which have been presented. On the other side of the Capitol a House subcommittee has finished the first draft of its measure and expects to submit the completed bill to the full committee about Friday.

Administration supporters in the Senate are confident that after the committee has discussed all proposals, the McNary bill, endorsed by Secretary Hyde, will be accepted as the structure upon which the new measure will be drafted.

Trade Board Has Record Year for New Members

The Board of Trade enrolled more members into its membership last year than in any previous year in its history. Luther W. Linkins, retiring chairman of the membership committee, announced yesterday that the membership committee, during the past year, enrolled 591 new members, bringing the total paid up membership of the Board of Trade to 3,136 members. John P. Webster, a member of the membership committee, brought in more members than any other member of the committee. It was said. The officers of the committee include Luther W. Linkins, chairman; Milton F. Schwab, first vice chairman; William E. Ellis, second vice chairman; Robert J. Cottrell, secretary, and T. Brooke Ames, treasurer.

A Man of Rare Professional Attainment

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the late Dr. J. C. Pierce, M. D. At first he practiced medicine in Western Pennsylvania and his unusual ability and success were soon recognized there. Then he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary where his famous remedies have ever since been made. Each succeeding year the sale of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been greatly increased. Evidently people appreciate the fact that it increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, helps to enrich the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young. It contains no harmful ingredient.

CAMERA EYE SEES MEXICAN BORDER BATTLE

REBELS GIVE UP JUAREZ

to patrol the streets to guard against looting.

A few minutes later a rebel was shot to death in a saloon on the main street as he was surprised in the act of carrying away an armful of bottles.

The city was left entirely without civil law when the police force disbanded, some of the members joining Gen. Caraveo's troops and others fleeing across the international bridges. The district judge and the prosecuting attorney closed their offices at 5 p. m. Capt. Juan M. Lopez Garcia, rebel officer, escaped across the line and surrendered to United States immigration men a few minutes before the troop train left.

Gen. Caraveo left only a trail of wreckage along the Mexican Central line when he came north today, rebels said, as they left. Twelve treaties were burned and dynamited. Every telegraph instrument was seized and as the train left a station, the wire was attached to the last car and ripped from the poles until it broke.

Gen. Nicolas Fernandez has evacuated Chihuahua City to the federals and is marching northward, Gen. Marcelo Caraveo announced as he started for Casas Grandes. "We are bound for Casas Grandes and the mountains that made guerrilla warfare famous," Gen. Caraveo said.

Federal Advance Halted.

El Paso, Tex., April 9 (U.P.).—Federal troops, under Col. Manuel Prieto, were halted in their march on Juarez when U. S. Army officers warned to night that American authorities would not permit endangering of lives in the United States by fighting on the streets such as occurred the bloody battle in Juarez on March 7.

Col. Prieto agreed to withhold his planned attack as long as revolutionary troops occupied the city.

"I will not attempt to occupy Juarez as long as there are troops in the city," Prieto promised Maj. A. J. Surles, Fort Bliss intelligence officer.

Prieto decided to have his federal troops spend the night in Guadalupe and march north with orders to recede the cavalry which had preceded the main army on its march toward the border point of entry.

Eight thousand rounds of rifle ammunition, 25 blankets and 25 army saddles were sent across the border.

from the United States for use of the federals.

Late today several rebel soldiers from the Juarez garrison fled across the Santa Fe Street Bridge, with rifles and pistols, and surrendered themselves to United States authorities. Much excitement prevailed in Juarez.

Leaving Guadalupe, 40 miles east, at 1 p. m. today, the federals met and defeated a band of rebels at Trejactales, 4 miles northwest of Guadalupe, the federal leader reported.

Gen. Marcelino Murietta, commander of the rebel garrison at Juarez, announced he was ready to meet the federals. Other reports, which were unconfirmed, were that Gen. J. G. Escobar had ordered Juarez evacuated. The new federal army, a surprise element in the developments today, was organized hastily at El Fortin, just across the border from Fort Hancock, Tex. Many farmers, who abandoned their fields, were in the federal command.

In addition, some of the soldiers were rebels who fled to the United States and who enlisted for the Mexican government service following an appeal from Simon Fuentes, Chihuahua member of the Mexican Congress.

The federal forces had no trouble in taking the town of Guadalupe, federal advisers said. The rebels there fled before the federals. Fuentes entered Guadalupe shortly after the occupation forces. The federals immediately seized the custom house and appointed Roberto Sanchez collector of customs.

18 U. S. Planes in Air.

Naco, Ariz., April 9 (A.P.).—Ready to attack any war planes from Mexico which cross the international line, a squadron of eighteen United States Army airplanes today roared along the border in an impressive warning against further bombing of United States soil.

The ships flew in formation between Douglas, to the east, and Nogales, west of here almost 100 miles.

Meanwhile, the commanders of both the rebel and federal armies across the border remained silent as to future plans. The rebels have remained in their camp just out of rifle range of the federal garrison at Naco, Sonora, since the battle last Saturday.

The planes were dispatched to Arizona from Fort Sam Houston and Fort Crockett, Tex., after thousands of Mexicans had been wounded and American property was damaged by four bombs which fell from rebel planes. Since the last warning was sent to Gen. Topete by Brig. Gen. Frank S. Cochrane here, no further bombing of the town has occurred.

No. U. S. Messages Sent.

No messages were sent to the rival Mexican armies by the United States Army fliers. Previously the rebels had been warned not to drop bombs on American territory, and to be careful to fire no more rifle bullets which might fall in Arizona.

Gen. Pascual Topete, rebel commander, gave no indication that he intended to make another assault on the entrenched federal army under Gen. Lucas Gonzalez in the immediate future. Reports indicated he intended to await reinforcements led by Gen. J. G. Escobar, commander in chief of the insurgents, before renewing the battle.

At Nogales, Sonora, rebel headquarters in western Mexico, orders from Gen. Francisco Borquez directed Mexican civilians to surrender firearms and ammunition at the garrison or face "severe punishment."

Calles Plans Offensive.

Mexico City, April 9 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles, after breaking the rebels' strength in central Mexico, established headquarters today at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, to supervise the federal offensive on the west coast. He brought with him a troop and supply trains to support the already victorious federal forces.

The federal northward advance continued methodically under direction of Gen. Lacaro Cardenas, whose field headquarters are at Culiacan, about 150 miles north of Mazatlan. The rebel army is considerably ahead, having halted at San Bas, near the Sonora border. Federal officers believe that as their forces continued northward with the restoration of communications the insurgents would fall back into Sonora, which is the only remaining state that they control.

Word reached Chapultepec Castle late tonight that the army of Gen. Juan A. Almazan had reached and occupied Chihuahua City, having met with little or no resistance since the rebel defeat at La Reforma.

The government was informed that the insurgent armies of Generals Escobar and Caraveo, after abandoning Chihuahua City, had proceeded north to

Fashion Dictators Fix Year's Colors

Peach, Nile Green and Blue Are Favored; Knee Remains Visible.

New York, April 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Peach, Nile green and sky blue, listed in the order of their prominence, are suggested by the color committee of garment retailers of America for smart summer wear. In the summer style parade at the Hotel Astor tonight the ensemble again took a leading role for beach, street, sports and formal wear.

Stout women are to be allowed to break away from conservative styles and somber colors. The freedom of the knee is maintained, with skirts dropping only to the middle of the knee-cap in sports and street wear. In daytime the silhouette will be slim and straight. For formal wear there will be the bouffant and princess style.

The bathing girl will wear a flared and fancy suit with a large area for sunburn on her back. Many versions of beach pajamas will be popular. Prints will be much in vogue, and silk faille will be much worn for coats.

Salt Lake Police Hold Man in Coast Slaying

Salt Lake City, April 9 (A.P.).—Clifford Lewis, 29 years old, of Brawley, Calif., was arrested here tonight by police for questioning in connection with the disappearance of his wife and the finding of the torso of a woman near Los Angeles.

Juarez and then headed southwestward for Sonora. There was a report that Gen. Caraveo was to break away from the main rebel body at Casas Grandes and take to the mountains of that region to carry on guerrilla warfare.

Press reports tonight said that 25 members of an irregular band of rebels were killed on Sunday near Lourdes, Guanajuato, in a clash that lasted several hours. The insurgents were said to have held up a passenger train running from Rincon to San Luis de la Paz. State Deputy Gonzalo Santos led a regiment of volunteer troops against the rebels, who were said to number about 200, and after a sharp engagement drove them into the hills.

AMERICA WILL HAVE EQUALITY.

The London Daily Telegraph recently published an article under the signature of Hector C. Bywater, the avowed purpose of which was to prove that Great Britain and not the United States made the real sacrifice in the naval conference of 1921-22. Mr. Bywater frequently has been used by the British admiralty as a mouthpiece. He states that it was the purpose of Great Britain, prior to the declaration of the naval holiday, to construct the greatest fighting machines the world had ever seen, ships infinitely more powerful than the battleships and battle cruisers scrapped by the United States under the treaty. In 1921, according to Mr. Bywater, there were authorized four "super-hoods" of 48,000 tons displacement, 4,500 tons heavier than the largest American ships then building, to carry nine 16-inch guns. In 1922, it was proposed to build four battleships of 48,500 tons displacement mounting 19-inch guns. "Concurrently," says the article, "Japan would have been constructing a fleet more formidable than that of the United States. Had the conference not taken place it is extremely probable that Great Britain would have been easily first in capital ship power, Japan second, and the United States none too close a third."

As to Great Britain's plans for naval construction in 1921 and 1922 not a great deal need be said. At that time the United States was building the strongest fleet in the world, to be completed by 1925. The Washington conference was called for the purpose of calling a halt on naval construction. The United States was willing to reduce its building program and scrap existing ships in order to establish equality of strength with Great Britain, and Great Britain, in view of America's approaching superiority, was only too glad to agree to equality. Thus the vague program for "super-hoods," of which Mr. Bywater speaks, meant nothing.

If a naval agreement had not been reached in 1922 the United States would have led the world in naval strength. If this position had been challenged by the construction of greater British ships, the result would have been an increase of the United States Navy. In such a race the advantage would have been overwhelmingly in favor of the United States.

The United States is now drawing nearer to equality with Britain in cruiser strength. If a race in this class of vessels should develop by reason of failure to reach a limitation agreement the advantage enjoyed by the United States would soon place it far in the lead.

It is misleading to suggest that Great Britain abandoned a stupendous building program in 1921 for the sake of world peace. Great Britain agreed to the American proposal to stop the race because it was hopeless for Britain to attempt to maintain a pace equal to that set by this country. The same situation exists now with regard to cruisers. Britain was gain nothing by trying to stay in the lead. Her only chance of avoiding a position of naval inferiority is to agree to a position of equality with the United States, and then stick to the agreement.

SUBMARINE DEVICES.

The tragic sinking of the submarine S-4 gave impetus to a search for improved salvage and rescue devices. Immediately following the sinking the public began a bombardment, with suggestions and advice, of the Navy Department. In June, 1928, there was formed the submarine safety board for the purpose of considering the suggestions and advice offered and weeding out the practicable from the impracticable. Almost 5,000 ideas were considered, the majority of which were obviously impracticable, but from which there were culled a bare five that will be adopted by the Navy forthwith. Foremost among them is the mechanical lung invented by Lieut. C. B. Momen, with which individuals entrapped in sunken submarines are able to make their way unassisted to the surface. In addition the board recommends the emplacement of additional hatches in submarines, the installation of a permanent lifting eye, the development of a device to carry telephone wires to the surface and the adoption of the escape chamber which is lowered from the surface.

These devices are useful only in accidents. The need for accident prevention is as great or greater than ever before. The board recognizes this fact in its report. "All efforts possible," it says, "should be made toward lessening the danger of collision, explosion and such other mishaps as may lead to the accidental submersion of submarines. The principal remedy for faults in this respect will lie in the careful selection and training of the personnel, although we believe that this has been carried to a high degree already."

Despite the development of new safety devices

there should be no relaxation of the care with which submarine personnel is selected and the thoroughness with which it is trained.

PLAN FOR THE FUTURE.

The Congress airport committee is now obtaining information upon which to base a recommendation for a suitable site and a plan for defraying the cost of developing an airport for Washington. The members of the committee are trying to look well into the future, so that the site and plan to be established will be adequate for a long time.

Local public sentiment favors Gravelly Point, which lies directly across the river from East Potomac Park. The site is partly submerged, and the work of dredging and filling would consume perhaps three years. The site is advantageous because of its accessibility and because it lies along the river, which in itself would form part of the field. On one side of the site, however, are railroad banks, telegraph and telephone wires, &c., which may be regarded as hazards to airplanes taking off from the field.

Sites in nearby Maryland are said to be available, which could be prepared without heavy expense for filling or dredging. These sites deserve careful consideration, in view of the fact that they might be made available much sooner than that at Gravelly Point.

When the time comes to consider the financing of the airport, the committee should look into the future and visualize the relation of the United States Government to the air service that is to be. The airport at Washington will be primarily a Government necessity. It should be established on a scale vastly greater than would be required for the municipality of Washington. When President Hoover advocated the establishment of an airport here which would be one of the five or six greatest depots in the country he did not have in mind the needs of the municipality, which ranks far below the leading cities. He had in mind, obviously, the future requirements of the Government in the transport of mail, passengers and express, not only to all points in the United States, but to the outside world.

The inability of Congress to see far into the future has greatly delayed the development of the Federal City. Cheap and temporary construction has come and gone, and structures lasting forever are very few. Yet the United States is perpetual, and the National Capital is to endure forever. Aviation is not an experiment, but a proved necessity. Congress should not imitate ancient examples of shortsightedness in dealing with the creation of an air depot at the seat of government. Let it provide a site and a plan that will seem absurdly large—as absurd as the broad avenues which George Washington projected through the wilderness that is now the National Capital. Time will reduce the greatest project to dimensions that will seem small.

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

For years there has been functioning in Illinois a system of farm accountancy by which individual farm records are analyzed each year and compared with averages for the most profitable and least profitable groups of farms. In 1925, a group of 200 farmers living in adjoining counties decided that they would like to have more personal service and less generalization in the analyses, whereupon they organized a farm management organization, the purpose of which was to show its members wherein they were losing money, by comparing their work with that of their neighbors, and by the same comparison indicating wherein a change in method or crop would increase their profits. The project proved so profitable that the University of Illinois scientists who were originally engaged to manage it have been reengaged for another three-year period.

The plan involves periodical personal visits to the farms by experts. Twenty departments of farm operation are considered, and efficiency in each is reported separately and compared with that of neighboring farmers. Individual farm reports are made in four columns of figures—one for the individual record, one for the group average, one for the 20 per cent most profitable farms, and one for the 20 per cent least profitable farms. As a result of the first three years' operation it is said that members of the organization have improved their efficiency considerably and they have obtained an entirely new idea of the value of field enlargement, crop rotation, soil improvement and live stock management.

It was found, for example, that 35 of the 200 farms studied earned $3,000 more per year than another 35, although there was practically no difference in the soil or in the value of the equipment used. The men on the most profitable farms, however, had fields half again as large as the average and more than 65 per cent of their acreage was devoted to high profit crops. Better soil management, better seed, better preparation of commodities for market, more live stock and greater efficiency in feeding were found to be among the factors that made for increased profits. Farmers in the least profitable group have been encouraged to emulate the more successful in these elements of successful farm operation, with the result that the prosperity of an entire region has been increased.

GROWTH OF AVIATION.

The second annual all-American aircraft show now being held in Detroit offers evidence of the tremendous strides made by aviation in the last year. Of the 61 aircraft company exhibitors 13 have been formed within the year and are showing the first planes produced. Some 60 aeronautical accessory exhibits are on display. There are new planes, new engines, new instruments and new operating devices, many of which promise to play an important part in the development of air transport. There are big planes and little planes, the manufacturers generally stressing their safety and speed. There is a luxurious plane with a passenger capacity of 32, with lavatories, kitchen and comfortable sleeping compartments. A tiny sport plane can be purchased, equipped with a reliable motor, for less than $500.

In years to come when individuals consider the history of commercial flying they will probably mark Lindbergh's flight to Paris as its turning point. It needed an achievement of that sort to dramatize the possibilities of flying. A successful long-distance flight proved that the airplane was practicable. From the day in December, 1903, when the Wrights first flew at Kitty Hawk, intrepid and danger-loving souls experimented with flying, but the public generally was afraid of the airplane and believed that its principal use would be as a military weapon. When Lindbergh brought the Spirit of St. Louis safely to earth at Le Bourget, however, the public suddenly realized that flight was practical for all travelers.

In 1925, according to the Department of Commerce, American manufacturers produced some 690 aircraft valued at $6,600,000. In 1926 there were produced 1,136 craft with a total value of $8,870,000 and in 1927 there were produced almost 2,000 aircraft valued at $14,250,000. In 1928, according to the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, there were produced approximately 5,000 planes and 3,500 aircraft motors having a total value exceeding $75,000,000. The show now being held at Detroit indicates that production will be at a new high level during 1929. It is not unlikely that aviation will become the giant of all American industries.

A WISE DECISION.

Fears that an abattoir would be constructed in Arlington County, in one of the choice scenic sections adjacent to the Capital and Arlington Cemetery, have passed. The N. Auth Provision Co. has wisely decided to withdraw its application for permission to erect an abattoir on that site. Public sentiment demanded that the district in question be restricted against slaughter houses and all similar types of industry, and the company has shown commendable civic spirit in complying with that popular wish.

The action is especially commendable since the company apparently had convinced the public officials of Arlington County that there was no valid reason for denying the application. By voluntarily giving up the project the company will gain the good will of the public. In spite of modern methods and the esthetic appearance proposed for the plant, it would have been impossible to transport animals to the place without giving offense.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHPLACE

By C. A. HOPPIN.

There are authentic evidences of four separate residences upon the Wakefield estate of 1,600 acres, not including the birthhouse built 1718-1720 by Augustine Washington, or the John E. Wilson residence.

The first house was owned by David Anderson, who acquired the land on which it stood, on March 10, 1662. This house stood close to Bridges Creek and very near the present graveyard. On December 3, 1664, Anderson sold this house and a small tract of land around it, to Col. John Washington, who lived and died in that house, as also, did his son, John, Jr. This house and land were acquired from the heirs of the said John, Jr., not long before 1742, by Augustine, sr., who had built the birthhouse on Popes Creek over twenty years earlier.

The second house on the Wakefield estate was on the 250-acre part surrounding the present residence of Messrs. Latane, and all of which land lay well to the south of the present road into Wakefield, no part of it reaching northward to the United States reservation on which stood the birthhouse. This house and land never were owned by Augustine Washington, sr., father of George Washington.

The third house built upon the Wakefield estate was built before 1670, when it was occupied by Lawrence Abbington, who died in that year. This property was previously owned by his father-in-law, Henry Brooks, who owned 1,020 acres, the entire northern section of Wakefield east of Bridges Creek. Brooks died before 1670, and bequeathed the same to his widow Joane and children. Their daughter, Lydia Brooks, married the said Lawrence Abbington and lived on the 80-acre section along Popes Creek southward to the line of Richard Hill's patent, which line ran from the creek westward, south of the present United States reservation. This 80-acre tract included the present United States reservation. Lydia (Brooks) Abbington, by will dated March 30, 1698, gave this 80-acre tract and the small primitive cottage on it (probably built of logs and weather boarded on the outside) to her children, who in turn with their heirs, on February 18 and 19, 1717, sold that small section with the old cottage to Augustine Washington, sr., who soon thereafter built on the same land the brick house in which he lived and in which his son, George, was born. He used the remains of the old cottage as a kitchen; and the kitchen stood beside the new brick house. After the Abbingtons sold the land and old kitchen-house they were never owned or occupied by any one except the said Augustine Washington, sr., his son, Augustine, Jr., to whom they were bequeathed, and by the latter's son, William Augustine Washington, who inherited them by will of his father in 1762. William A. Washington was living in that house, when, on December 25, 1780, a fire started in the old kitchen, destroyed that kitchen, spread to the brick house, and destroyed that brick house, the birthplace of George Washington. No house has ever since been built upon that site, and no person since 1780 has ever resided upon that site, where, in 1926, were dug up the pieces of salt-glaze ware, &c., used in that house by the only persons who ever lived in it or on its site—the Washingtons.

The next residence on the Wakefield estate was that owned, from December 12, 1656, by Daniel Liston with 400 acres of land—all located upon the northwestern end of the Wakefield estate; and all of that land was adjoining to and west of Bridges Creek. On September 26, 1695, that house and the 400 acres were sold by the children of said Daniel Liston to Lawrence Washington, whose letter of 1695, still exists, describing the house as old and in need of repairs. He repaired the place, which had been unoccupied for some years, because the Liston children had returned to England. Lawrence bequeathed this property in 1697-8 to his son, Augustine, father of George Washington, who used the buildings thereon as a quarter for his slaves, as his will proves.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

But They Don't Stick.
To the Editor of The Post: Sir—The Postoffice Department denies that stamps "don't stick." The Bureau of Engraving has never been authorized to make any change in the quantity of glue placed on the stamps in the interest of economy or otherwise, it says. Furthermore, an exhaustive test made recently at the Bureau of Standards proved beyond question the adhesive qualities of postage stamps, it asserts. To which I make this simple, but crushing reply: "Stamps Don't Stick."

Dirty Alleys.
To the Editor of The Post: Sir—The domestic who hides the sweepings beneath the carpet has been made the butt of many a joke. The local government, in my opinion, keeps house about like that maid. Washington's handsome, wide thoroughfares are kept reasonably clean. Her alleys are neglected. I have in mind particularly an alley containing a piece of refuse (a burp bag) that I inspect each morning. It hasn't been moved for weeks. Now that the spring house cleaning season is at hand, why shouldn't the District government clean up the alleys?

A Naval Armistice?
To the Editor of The Post: Sir: The preparatory naval conference will meet at Geneva on April 15 with the American delegation unprepared to present any new formula, depending instead upon the position maintained at the last conference. That conference was a failure, and there is no probability of a more successful session now if the diplomats continue to debate the comparative value of tonnage or fighting strength as the basis for naval limitation.

A simple way out of the difficulty would be for the United States to propose that every nation be restricted to the ships in actual commission today, forbidding further naval construction of any sort for at least five years. Such a naval armistice, recognizing the status quo, would be fair to all. It would not impair the security of any country, for each would remain as strong comparatively as it is now. No amount of new construction will improve national defense if new fighting machines are being constructed by other powers in the ratio of 5-5-3 or on any other basis heretofore suggested.

A naval armistice would conserve each nation's resources, but, more important, it would indicate sincerity on the part of the powers that have ratified the Kellogg-Briand peace pact.

Nothing Wrong With the Kids.
To the Editor of The Post: Sir: At last the college professors are apparently convinced that there is nothing wrong with the present generation of students. Dr. Henry Grattan Doyle, dean of men at George Washington University, who has made a survey of the situation, is quoted as saying that "the college boy in flapping pants and in the ratio of 5-5-3 or on any other basis heretofore suggested."

The Juice of Forbidden Fruit Leaves Stains That Endure Forever.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

LOVE without honor ends in remorse and hate. Day after day the newspaper headlines multiply evidence to warn those who are tempted by the lure of forbidden fruit.

The body of a middle-aged woman is found in a river. There is a bullet hole in her forehead. She was the wife of a prosperous farmer and ran away with a younger man.

A hotel detective is murdered. The murderer is one of a prominent family. Whisky began his ruin, but his passion for a woman worked his final destruction.

A man leaps from a hotel window and is broken on the pavement below. Detectives break into the room he occupied and find another man's wife.

A girl's body is found under a culvert. A young man who disappeared from the community is arrested in a distant State and confesses that he killed her because she was about to become a mother and he did not wish to marry her.

A girl in college kills herself with poison "to avoid disgracing her family."

Again and again the sordid, ugly story is repeated, and always it ends in disgrace and shame and a remorse that makes life unbearable. Love without honor ends in hate.

Illicit love is the most subtle and most dangerous of temptations, for it adds to the lure of sex the spice of danger and builds for its victims a dream world in which they are blind to reality and reason.

They have their little hour of ecstasy and then, as reason returns, they begin to realize how much they have sacrificed.

They had hoped to feel respectable and they find themselves ashamed. They hide or run away and hate themselves for hiding.

Each becomes a burden and a nuisance to the other. "I would be safe at home now," the woman says, "except for you." "And I," the man says, "would feel respectable and free again if I could be rid of you."

Hiding, sneaking. Dark rooms in cheap hotels. Fear of pursuit. Want of money. Vain regrets. Each blaming the other. Burdened with black shame and longing to be clean again. Man and woman fallen to the uttermost depths. The madness of remorse. Murder or suicide, seeking a way out.

Clean and honorable love in the broad light of day is a noble thing. The world smiles upon it. The happy lovers feel respectable and are respected.

But illicit love, whatever its charm, is vile in the beginning and inevitably leads to shame.

No man can live in violation of right and again feel clean. And as he scorns himself, so will he scorn his partner in degradation.

Do Toads Make Warts?
To the Editor of The Post: Sir: Karl Schmidt, reptile expert of the Field Museum in Chicago, has published a leaflet in which is contained the following paragraph:

"The common belief that the handling of toads may cause warts is wholly without foundation. It has evidently arisen from the simple analogy between the wartiness of toads and the existence of warts on the hands of small boys."

The warts of the toad's skin, of course, bear no relation to the warts to which the human skin is subject. The skin of toads does secrete a poison, which is a violent irritant to the mouth and eyes, but not to the skin of man. This poison probably protects the toad from some of its enemies."

But I knew a boy out in Ohio, many years ago, who had a mania for catching and handling toads. He had more warts on his hands than I've seen in all the rest of my life put together. How do you explain that? I've always avoided touching toads and I've never had a wart.

OLD-TIMER.

WHITE INDIANS.
A party headed by Dr. Herbert Spencer Dickey, member of the Explorers' Club, which is scheduled to leave New York April 25 on an archeological and ethnological expedition into the head-waters country of the Upper Orinoco, in Venezuela, will search for a tribe of white Indians reported to live in the hitherto unexplored region, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

While the existence of the tribe is a moot question, there is ample reason to believe that Dr. Dickey's expedition may succeed in its quest. The territory to be visited is only about 800 miles southeast of the Darien region of Panama, where lives a scientifically authenticated group of white Indians, the San Blas.

The race, first reported to the outside world by Spanish explorers in the sixteenth century, were brought to modern recognition by Richard O. Marsh, who received for his unselfish efforts the sneers of the scientific world and, finally, an official order forbidding him to reenter the Panamanian Republic.

The order still stands. Marsh aided the chiefs of the various San Blas tribes, some of whom are brown, and some white, in an unsuccessful revolt against the government of Panama. It was his intention, and no one save the Panamanian officials doubted the honesty of his motives, to make the Indians independent, self-supporting and forever free from the exploitation of Central American politicians. The revolt and the chiefs' request for a United States Government protectorate failed, and Marsh was banished.

When news dispatches in 1924 told of Marsh's discovery, prominent scientists condemned the white Indians as albinos. Marsh, however, brought several of them to Washington, where they were examined by Dr. Herbert W. Krieger, curator of ethnology of the United States National Museum. Dr. Krieger said they were neither albinos nor hybrids, but pure-blooded Indians, closely resembling the famous Mayas of Yucatan.

Central American legends are full of accounts of a race of white natives, descended, according to some of the legends, "from the sun." If Dr. Dickey discovers the tribe reported in Venezuela, the discovery may well add much to the knowledge of the pre-Christian civilizations in Central America.

It may be that the tribe exists and that it and the San Blas tribe sprang from a common Mayan fountain-head. Or, better yet for archeology, it may be that the Venezuelan tribe is the remnant of the fountain-head and the San Blas the descendant of emigrants.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Evening-Up.
Boston Transcript: Mortality may not be high in Mexican battles, but the firing squads even matters up with the rising of the sun.

Sure's a Reason.
Florida Times-Union: Three times the number of Americans visit Canada than the Canadians visit America. It is stated. And there is a very wet reason.

Old Crow What?
Springfield Sun: Michigan is to choose a State bird in April. If you have been in Detroit recently you probably won't be able to understand it if the bird designated isn't the Old Crow.

The Best Argument.
Ohio State Journal: Another argument for strict law observance is that then the prohibition enforcement agents would have to bring their own when they called to your house or go without.

Isn't So Funny.
Evansville Courier: The farmer hasn't so many amusements as the city man, but he gets quite a kick out of the city man's efforts to solve the farm problem.

Dangerous Practice.
Atlanta Constitution: A police captain sounded the warning that courting in automobiles is dangerous. For that matter courting is dangerous any place at any time.

Sweet Music.
Border Cities Star: "There is no sweeter music than the rustling of the palms," sighs Florian Ziegfeld, vacationing in Florida. What about the clapping of the palms?

Sounds Sensible.
Buffalo Courier-Express: Evidently some of those Mexican rebel forces believe that he who dodges a fight and runs away may live to run another day.

And the Lady Next Door.
Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: "No human being has ever told all the lies to which the flesh is heir," says a writer in a medical journal. Well, some of the old medicine almanacs made a pretty complete job of it.

"One Horse."
Detroit News: A philologist has informed a paper in Baltimore, where he is staying, that it is a unique word, "unique" coming from the Latin "unus," meaning one, and "equus," meaning horse.

Sounds Like Home.
New Orleans Times-Picayune: It must be a pretty vigorous "case" that, carried to the Charity Hospital in the new high speed ambulance, doesn't succumb to the horrors of the shrieking siren that open traffic for the speeding vehicle.

Soft Job.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The Michigan house voted yesterday to conduct a legislative investigation to find out whether there is any truth in the rumor that University of Michigan women students smoke cigarettes. That's what we call a soft job.

Unit for Print.
Topeka Daily Capital: In his despairing hope for privacy Calvin Coolidge told the New York newspaper men the other day in that city, "You will have to help me." It would be of interest to know what Roosevelt's spirit in the happy hunting grounds thought of that.

Tut, Tut!
New Orleans Times-Picayune: "Army quartermaster's office reports record sales of surplus materials and transfers of various items of stock to Navy and Justice Departments." All out-of-date scales among the hardware estimates no doubt were sent over to the Justice branch of the Government.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

MR. HOOVER received yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock a group of guests at tea at the White House.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, had visiting him the first of the week at the Mayflower, his son, Mr. Harry K. Curtis, who left yesterday for New York and will return to his home in Chicago Saturday.

The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard have had as their guests for several days the British High Commissioner of Canada, Sir William Clarke, and Lady Clarke, who returned yesterday to Ottawa.

The Ambassador to Brazil, Senor B. Gurgel do Amaral, will return today from New York, where he has passed several days.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel were the ranking guests at a dinner given last evening by the Chief of Staff of the Army and Air Corps, P. Summerall at their quarters at Fort Myer. The other guests were the Japanese Ambassador and Mrs. Debutchi, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Arthur L. Willard, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. McCord, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John M. Palmer and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert O. Williams.

The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debutchi entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon.

The Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Davila will entertain informally at dinner tonight.

The Minister of Colombia and Senora de Olaya will entertain at a reception this afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock in honor of the Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation for Bolivia and Paraguay.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Paraguay and Mme. Ramirez, who have been making their home at the Hotel Brighton, have moved to the Highlands, where they have an apartment.

Senator Capper Guest of Brig. Gen. Williams.

Senator Arthur Capper was the ranking guest at a dinner given last night by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert Owen Williams at the Chevy Chase Club for 40 guests.

Senator and Mrs. A. H. Vandenberg have taken an apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel. They have just returned from a visit to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Senator and Mrs. Walter E. Edge, who have passed a month at their home in New Jersey, have returned to Washington.

Representative Charles A. Eaton is expected to return today to the Wardman Park Hotel after passing some time at his home in Plainfield, N. J.

Representative and Mrs. M. Alfred Richardson have returned to the Wardman Park Hotel after a visit to their home in Chicago.

Representative and Mrs. Frank Ross, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Ruth Ross, are expected to return to Washington Monday after passing several weeks at their home in Massachusetts.

The First Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Bedoya will be the guests of honor at an informal luncheon to be given by Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom Saturday. Dr. and Senora de Bedoya sail soon for Peru.

Prince Mihail Sturdza, retiring Count of the Roumanian Legation, will sail today from New York on the Leviathan, to go to his new post as Minister to Latvia. Princess Sturdza sailed last week for Europe.

The Attache of the Roumanian Legation, Mr. George Dica, is expected to return Saturday from a cruise in the West Indies.

Mrs. Foulis Will Give Luncheon for Mrs. Gann.

Mrs. B. D. Foulis, wife of Brig. Gen. Foulis, has issued invitations for a luncheon, to meet Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, on April 16. Covers will be laid for 35 guests.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Foulis will not receive on Sunday.

Count Louis Sant'Elia, who has been in Washington twice during his visit to America, will sail tomorrow for Italy. Countess Sant'Elia will remain in this country for another month.

Mrs. Joseph Benson Foraker will arrive tomorrow to be the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Victor N. Cushman.

Commander and Mrs. Clement Biddle are expected to arrive in Washington on Monday for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bradley are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter. Mr. Bradley was formerly Miss Carolyn Chamberlain, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John L. Chamberlain.

Mrs. William Fitch Kelley is at the Weilyn in New York for several days.

Mr. F. E. Haynes to Wed Miss Frances Gore Today.

The marriage of Miss Frances Lerner Gore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Gore, to Mr. F. Eberhart Haynes, son of Judge and Mrs. J. E. Haynes, of Ciebure, Tex., will take place today at noon at the home of the bride. A wedding breakfast and reception will follow at the Carlton.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Gore entertained the members of the wedding party at dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Katharine Amory, will sail on Saturday for Sweden.

San Francisco

AMERICA'S COOLEST SUMMER CITY

Worth a trip alone to see, San Francisco is your ideal headquarters city for the California vacation. No summer rain to mar a single day. An average summer temperature of 59° F. Pick your sport according to your whim. Select your climate as you do your sport, for every kind is here. Enjoy the gaiety of this cosmopolitan city.

And easily accessible from San Francisco are the Wawona Big Trees, gorgeous Yosemite, the Monterey Peninsula, Lassen Volcanic National Park, Crater Lake, Jack London's Valley of the Moon and other favorite playgrounds of those who know California.

To the south of San Francisco are broad beaches, orange groves covering the valleys and foothills, old missions and the headquarters of the motion picture industry, while northward are the "Evergreen Playground," the Puget Sound Country, the valley of the giant Columbia River, Crater Lake and Mt. Shasta. Plan to see the entire Pacific Coast either by sidetrips from San Francisco or as you return at the end of your finest summer.

Here is an ideal vacation. Here are opportunities, too, that may be worth investigation. Thousands who came to visit, have returned to live. Perhaps your summer will serve this double purpose, finding a playground and finding a home. For your assistance, a free illustrated book, "California Vacations," will be sent by Californians, Inc., a non-profit organization, whose sole purpose is to serve the guests of California.

CREW OF 'I'M ALONE' ALLOWED FREEDOM

Randall and Sailors Released From Jail at Instance of U. S. Attorney.

LEAVE FOR THEIR HOMES

New Orleans, La., April 9 (A.P.).—The skipper and crew of the rum-running Canadian schooner I'm Alone, sunk by a Coast Guard boat in the Gulf of Mexico, were released today at the request of U. S. District Attorney Edmund E. Talbot.

Papers of dismissal of charges against Capt. John Thomas Randall and his crew of seven were immediately signed by U. S. Commissioner Reginald H. Carter, Jr., the whole procedure requiring less than 5 minutes. Although the district attorney gave no reason for his motion, Attorney General Mitchell, at Washington, explained that the charges were dropped because the Government was unable to obtain evidence to supplement the admissions of the captain that overt acts were committed inside the 3-mile limit.

Talbot, however, in making his motion said he wished to make it clear that the action "in no way prejudices or affects the right of the Coast Guard to seize and search rum runners." "This is merely disposal of the criminal side of the case with the civil issue affecting the right of search and seizure or any indemnities growing out of the I'm Alone being a matter for the governments to settle," he added. Before the commissioner heard the district attorney, Edwin H. Grace, counsel for the crew, filed a plea of jurisdiction setting forth that the issue involved was whether the rum schooner was more than one hour's steaming distance from the Louisiana coast when the chase began. The schooner was sunk March 22 and the crew had been held here since March 24.

"Thank the Lord, that's all over," commented Capt. Randall. He said he would leave New Orleans tonight for his home in Nova Scotia, accompanied by five members of the crew. The other two, who live in British Honduras, said they would sail for Belize in a few days. Talbot had explained that although the skipper and crew were aliens, without passports, it was customary to give them 90 days in port. Randall indicated 35 hours was all he wanted. "I'll probably go back to the sea, but not as a rum runner," Randall told newspaper men.

Outside Loop Is Made By Flier in Open Plane

Minneapolis, Minn., April 9 (A.P.).—Charles ("Speed") Holman, winner of various competitive air flights, successfully negotiated an outside loop in a biplane today. He was said to be the first flier to perform this feat with an open biplane, the same as used in commercial and air mail flying. He started the stunt from a height of 10,000 feet.

CANADIAN NOTE PROTESTING I'M ALONE SINKING PRESENTED

To know the position of his ship from the shore. The contention of the Coast Guard that the I'm Alone was within 10.8 miles of the shore when signaled conflicts with the testimony of Capt. Randall, but the Canadian government finds no reason for accepting this testimony of an interested boatswain against that of the captain of the British schooner.

Similar Case Is Cited.

There have been controversies in the past of this character between the Canadian government and the Government of the United States and the American commander of a Coast Guard ship which held up the Canadian vessel Coal Harbor is now under indictment in the Federal courts in San Francisco for having falsely stated the position of his ship. But the Canadian government takes the position that even if the I'm Alone had been within an hour's steaming distance of the shore, and therefore subject to search, this would give the American cutters no right under international law to pursue the ship two days onto the high seas. In other words, the start of a pursuit can not begin excepting in American territorial waters, according to the Canadian understanding. And American territorial waters extend to only 3 miles off shore by the terms of the treaty itself.

The humanitarian aspect of the I'm Alone case, whereby human life was endangered by American gunfiring on the high seas is also understood to be touched on in the Canadian note. In other words, the methods employed in the chase are sharply criticized by Canada.

Collapse of Treaty Seen.

There appears to be no doubt that the present action of Canada is a forerunner to developments which may

COAST GUARD SHOTS HELD AGAINST RULES

Moderation League's Head Contrasts Lowman Order With Use of Guns.

ASKS HOW IT HAPPENED

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Austen G. Fox, chairman of the Moderation League, today made public the text of a Treasury order dealing with prohibition enforcement, in which it is stated that "unwise and unwarranted use of firearms by officers in the past has caused the bureau considerable embarrassment and resulted in much unfavorable and harmful publicity." The order warns that officers will be held strictly accountable for the use of firearms.

Mention of the order as being a year old was made several days ago by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman in a report on fatalities incident to prohibition enforcement. Replying to a telegraphed request from Mr. Fox for a copy, Secretary Lowman said:

"Sec. 25. Prohibition Regulations No. 4. Care in Use of Firearms: 'The promiscuous flourishing and display of firearms is prohibited. A weapon should never be drawn on a person except in self-defense or to prevent the commission of a felony. The unwise and unwarranted use of firearms by officers in the past has caused the bureau considerable embarrassment and resulted in much unfavorable and harmful publicity. While it is not intended that an officer should remain passive and jeopardize his own life or the life of an associate when danger threatens, it is intended that extreme caution and cool deliberation should control his actions. An officer should remember that he will be strictly accountable and personally responsible for the fatal result of any use of firearms by him.' (Issued January 28, 1928.)"

With copies of the order Mr. Fox issued an open letter to Secretary Lowman in which he mentioned several incidents which have occurred since issuance of the order, among them the sinking of the British schooner I'm Alone by the Coast Guard, and the asking of each one, in view of the instructions about use of firearms more than a year ago, "How did it happen?"

Fish About to Sue Invaders of Yacht

Action Is to Be Brought to Establish the Facts of Case in Court.

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Caruthers Ewing announced today that as attorney for Stuyvesant Fish, wealthy broker and sportsman, he was preparing to file suit against members of the Coast Guard, which Fish charges with brandishing pistols and using profanity during a vain search for liquor on the Fish yacht, Restless.

Ewing said the civil action by Fish would ask for nominal damages and was being instituted in an effort to obtain a judicial determination of the facts. When reporters reminded him that the Fish yacht was halted and searched by members of the Customs Patrol and not the Coast Guard, Ewing said that if that was so the suit would be directed against the Customs men. The defendants, he said, will be charged with false imprisonment and assault on members of the Fish party. The search occurred recently near the Statue of Liberty as Fish, with his wife and two young sons, was bringing the yacht here. Men who made the search were questioned by their superiors and denied charges contained made by Fish.

The Place of Southern Pine in American History

IN a new world of amazing things nothing excited more the marvel of North America's first explorers than the gigantic forests bordering the Atlantic and the Gulf—an almost unbroken expanse of Southern Pines extending from 150 to 400 miles inland and from Chesapeake Bay to Texas. The thoughts of the first white men as to the utility of these towering, shapely trees are unrecorded but, with the coming of the earliest colonists, Southern Pine began to take its place in American history.

The rude log hut and its protecting stockade sprang quickly from the broadness of the sturdy pioneer. (Then did he first begin to learn the value of this wonder wood. He found it easy to cut yet tough and strong. He made crude furniture and found it had a beautiful grain when he smoothed its surface. He made rough boats and barges and began to follow the rivers inland. As he cut trees for homes and barns, he planted grain in the wake of the axman and then soon came the little water power grist mill. Having power and needing lumber, there was rigged a power-driven cross-cut saw, that moved up and down slowly, ponderously, through giant logs—three or four hundred board feet of plank, a day's output. All the time the uses for this sturdy workable pine expanded. It found favor with the ship builder. Into schools and churches it went. Homes became more pretentious. Business buildings became larger. Returning ships from the old world took back cargoes of rough Southern Pine boards to be made into artistically wrought panels and furniture. Now, after two or three centuries, many of these articles are coming back to the land of their birth as valued antiques to grace the mansions of the rich.

And so the manufacture of Southern Pine into lumber became a leading industry in the colonies. George Washington, himself, for five years beginning in 1763, was actively engaged in a large lumbering operation on a 40,000-acre tract in Virginia. No doubt the first president, shrewd business man that he was, saw clearly the value of this God-given building material, for his own Mount Vernon mansion was built of it in 1743. Its condition now speaks for the durability of Southern Pine. Innumerable early American homes stand today, beautiful and useful, two-century old monuments to the strength and permanence of this distinctly American product.

Lumber manufacture, as a large independent business, came after the introduction of steam power. Then the industry grew rapidly, until today the great modern Southern Pine mill in the South cuts as much as a million or more board feet every 24 hours.

The crude hand-hewn timber of the colonist and his rough sawn clapboard used green from the tree, have become smooth, squared, perfect pieces of wood of countless sizes, shapes and lengths, scientifically dried in great kilns.

Simple were the earlier uses but today Southern Pine enters into the manufacture of literally hundreds of articles. Truly, it has come to be the "wood of a thousand uses." It sheltered the intrepid first settler. It shelters millions of Americans today. He fashioned his first vehicles from it. Today his descendants ride in automobile bodies made of it. His first little business enterprises began within narrow walls of Southern Pine. Today great factory buildings several city blocks—many of them built half a century or more ago—are of that self same wood. The first steam train ran over rails of wood. Today two-thirds of all the freight cars in the United States are built of Southern Pine.

The colonist built his little sailing boats of Southern Pine. Yet they were sturdy enough to buffet uncharted seas. From Paul Jones down past Farragut and Dewey to Sims, our naval heroes all have walked decks of Southern Pine. Three centuries of glorious achievement are linked in the span between the launching of Old Ironsides and the modernization of the Texas—and both are decked with Southern Pine. Life on battleships changes but there is no softening of the elements. Under the freezing spray of the North Atlantic or the blistering sun of the Caribbean—the decks of Southern Pine are subjected to supreme weather tests. The impact of an anchor chain requires as solid and hard a deck on the Texas as the wheels of guns required on "Old Ironsides."

In the days of the Constitution, they built of the best they could obtain, Southern Pine. In the days of the Texas, they reach out the best in the world and get it, Southern Pine.

When the young nation erected a permanent home for its presidents, the builders turned to Southern Pine and only a few months ago in remodeling the White House, there were found supporting its roof, timbers as perfect as the day they were set into place.

In peace time, in war, in industry, in home-building, in transportation—Southern Pine is linked forever with American history and American progress.

As America has progressed so has this great lumber industry of the South. In recent years, especially, there have been many forward steps to make for a better product and for better means of serving the users of it. Most important of these was the adoption of the American Lumber Standards as sponsored by Herbert Hoover, while Secretary of the Department of Commerce. These standards recommended that manufacturers of lumber brand their product with a grade-mark so that the buyer would be positively assured of obtaining the quality, he desired. A large group of Southern Pine manufacturers who subscribe to the Southern Pine Association courageously accepted Secretary Hoover's suggestion and today the buyer of Southern Pine has this new protection when he comes to buy, a commodity as important as lumber.

For fifty years persons not familiar with forestry in the South have predicted an early exhaustion of the Southern Pine supply.

However, a coldly calculating estimate of the situation does not disclose any cause for alarm. In the first place, there are still billions and billions of feet of standing virgin Southern Pine timber. Countless millions of trees are growing bigger and better every year.

Despite the enormous stand, it is true that it would some day be cut out were it not for future crops.

[These future crops of trees assure an unending supply. Basic economics give a double assurance. Not only is it essential that we as a nation have an unending supply of this supreme structural wood, but it has been found that much of the cut-over land is valueless except for the growing of recurring crops of Southern Pine.]

Since reforestation was begun enough time has elapsed to disclose the possibility of raising, at will, a so-called second growth with a higher percentage of density than is found in virgin growth.

A climate favorable to tree growth prevails throughout the South—a long, warm growing season with abundance of rain. The cutting off of virgin timber in the South is not the serious matter that is the depletion of stands in more rigorous climates.

In other words, the factor of rapid growth, the reproductive possibilities of great areas and the possibilities of producing by scientific management a better tree, gives us all the assurance we need that Southern Pine—the supreme structural wood of the world—is never to disappear from the lumber markets of the world.

[The Southern Pine Association, whose general offices are in New Orleans, La., is composed of the principal manufacturers of Long Leaf and Short Leaf Southern Pine Lumber, an organization 15 years old, whose function is three-fold:]

1. Education of its own subscribers in the production of better lumber.
2. Assistance to retail lumber dealers that they may better merchandise their stocks and better inform the public of the merits of wood in general and Southern Pine in particular.
3. Education of the lumber consuming public in the advantages of better lumber and better construction.

[To accomplish this three-fold educational work this Association's program includes:]

- Distributing each year millions of pieces of literature.
- Addressing each year millions of newspaper and magazine readers through advertising.
- Keeping in the field a staff of lumber experts who study the needs of the industry and transmitting their findings to the public by printed matter and public address.
- Maintaining an engineering department which answers any construction question.

Exhibiting throughout the country displays of Southern Pine products in finished form.

Providing schools of instruction for manufacturers and their salesmen.

Using continuously the accredited wood laboratories where, by scientific test, facts are determined to promote the more proper use of wood products.

Conforming to American Lumber Standards as promulgated by the United States Department of Commerce.

Grade-marking and trade-marking its products so the purchaser may know positively that he gets the grades he desires and also manufactured them.

In cooperation with leading architects, created and demonstrated the "fifteen points of safe and permanent frame construction."

Adopted a positive identification rule for Long Leaf Southern Pine as distinguished from Short Leaf Southern Pine, furnishing an Association guarantee of same.

In the 15 years' history of the Southern Pine Association practically all of its funds have been expended in efforts to give the lumber-using public better lumber and to promote the more intelligent use of wood products. There shall be no departure from this policy so long as this Association exists.

From Washington to Hoover—a span of 140 years! Within that period Southern Pine had a high place in the building of America. Manufacturers of this useful wood look back with pardonable pride upon that record and today they look to the future with the hope of new and greater achievements for their industry—a continuance of Southern Pine's high place in American history.

DUPONT AUTO-LIGHT SYSTEM WINNING

Growing Familiarity of Drivers and Better Timing Bring Big Improvement.

PEDESTRIAN IS GUARDED

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

With the time interval lengthened, motorists and pedestrians generally growing more familiar with them, and an intimation that they may be turned off earlier at night, the Dupont circle signal lights are daily assuming a more normal and less conspicuous place in the local traffic scheme of things. Further serving to remove the signals from the limelight of desperate debate is the wider recognition of their primary purpose to protect pedestrians, a purpose first confused as a desire to heckle motorists.

That the lights are serving well their primary purpose in permitting pedestrian traffic, including a large number of children, to cross the circle safely is an established fact, according to officials of the Traffic Bureau.

They further point that motor traffic is flowing with greater smoothness as drivers become more familiar with the lights and as result of a change in the time interval is sustained by actual test during the hours of congestion.

Complaints originally directed against the lights now are being turned on an increasing scale against the motorists whose confused sense of position results in bottling up on-coming traffic.

One sustained protest against the lights, heard in many quarters, is that if they are primarily intended for pedestrian protection, it should not be necessary to keep them in operation after 10 p. m., when pedestrian traffic amounts to virtually nothing. On this point, the traffic office shows a disposition to be tractable and an intimation is forthcoming that, should a survey sustain the argument that the lights are useless some hours before midnight, they will be turned off.

Such a course is regarded by many as closing the door to one of the most reasonable complaints against the system which has been in operation long enough to refute the snap judgments passed upon it in the first 24 hours. There were many of these, some conspicuous for their violence, the Traffic Bureau recalls.

Now, it appears to many drivers as well as to traffic authorities, the authors of these protests entirely forgot that the circle always was difficult to drive, almost impossible to cross on foot during the hours of congestion. Another traffic history page ignored in the original complaints was that when Scott's car first lighted it was a veritable maelstrom until motorists became familiar with its negotiation.

That circle which carries the burden of Sixteenth street and Massachusetts avenue traffic now presents little obstacle to the motorist because he has learned to drive it correctly and with a minimum of interference with others.

Those who have deferred judgment on the Dupont Circle system, who have recognized its primary purpose as the protection of school children, youngsters playing in the park, and other pedestrians, and who have recalled the history of comparable traffic situations, are confident it will repeat the Scott Circle history. Evidence of this, they declare, is mounting daily as drivers entering the area of the 21 new lights learn to take their proper lane and keep it.

Time Interval Improvement.

The change in the time interval also has wrought a considerable improvement, actual driving tests and observation reveal. When the lights first were turned on the interval allowed motorists was 40 seconds and that given to pedestrians 20 seconds. As revised and effective today, motor traffic is given 50 seconds to take its desired arc out of the circle. Pedestrians are given 25-second intervals to cross at any of the crosswalks which have been painted across the pavement. These incidentally, by establishing precise boundaries

Insanity Dread Drives Woman to Dive in Sea

Miami, Fla., April 9 (A.P.).—Fear of insanity drove Miss Clara Ella Lang, 45 years old, of Douglas Manor, Long Island, to dive into the darkness from the deck of the Clyde liner Shawnee and end her life at sea Monday night, investigating authorities reported here today.

The fate of the woman passenger, who was en route to a sanitarium to undergo treatment for a nervous disease, was not known definitely until the ship docked here this morning and a search of her stateroom revealed two notes indicating her intention to commit suicide because of fear of mental disorder.

HERE TO ATTEND LUMBER MEETING

for both forms of traffic, are regarded as contributing significantly to improving the situation.

Actual tests of conditions prevailing at the circle today show that, even in the hours of heaviest motor traffic, the driver who times his entrance to the circle properly, takes his proper lane and handles his car smoothly, can get around with, at the worst, only one stop. In the hours of less congestion, the circle presents no more difficulty of driving than any other green-and-red-light combination in the city. At every light it is a matter of timing, and, if it is properly done, stops are unnecessary.

One point that is missed by many of the critics of the lights, their defenders say, is that the stop is shorter than in most cases, while the period of vehicular movement, 50 seconds is the longest interval of its kind in the city.

Militating against complete sympathy for the lights from the start, as many view it, is the fact that they represent the only instance in Washington of a sharp delineation of the rights, respectively, of pedestrians and motorists. At all other lighted intersections, traffic movement is a matter of this motor stream moving while that is stopped, or vice versa. At the circle it is strictly a matter of pedestrian and motorist and the corresponding adjustment of perspective is regarded as difficult to make.

The motorist, it is declared, has learned to think in terms of another motor vehicle stream having the right of way, and not the pedestrian having it. Confronted with an entirely different situation, his experience, in many cases, was held insufficient to encompass it.

However, as time demonstrates the

LOST PLANE'S CREW LOCATED, IS RUMOR

Southern Cross and Four Men Found in Wilds, Unconfirmed Report Says.

BOAT HELD "STANDING BY"

Sydney, New South Wales, April 9 (A.P.).—The eleventh day since the disappearance of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith's airplane Southern Cross in the wilds of western Australia brought an unconfirmed report that the plane and its crew of four aviators had been found 30 miles southwest of the Drysdale Mission Station, but no definite news.

Australian authorities, however, have not abandoned hope of eventually finding the fliers somewhere in the region around the Drysdale station, whence the last definite reports of their passage were given to searching parties. These reports were that an airplane had passed over the station headed southwest on March 31, which was about the time the Southern Cross should have been in that vicinity.

A message from the mission by way of Derby today declared a boat was standing by to take on board the aviators, who were said to have been discovered on the coast 30 miles south of the station. This was received with skepticism by Capt. Chater, one of the air searchers.

Premier Bruce announced today that the federal government would share half the expense incurred by the gov-

(He has given permission for a temporary suspension of air mail services so that more airplanes would be available in the hunt which the west Australian authorities now are centering on the district between the Port George Mission, the Prince Regent River and the Drysdale River.)

The government also is expediting supplies of gasoline for the searching planes. Search by land has been continued without interruption.

FORMER POLICE AID, FREED, HELD AGAIN

Discharged Traffic Bureau Clerk Is Rearrested on Fraud Charge.

ACCUSED BY REALTY MAN

Loren H. Wittner, discharged Traffic Bureau clerk, gained his liberty when an indictment charging him with false pretenses in the District Supreme Court was nolle prossed, but as he walked out of the courtroom he was rearrested by Deputy Marshal Harry Parker on the same charge and will be reindicted.

Activities of Wittner favoring Gov. Smith during the campaign caused Edwin E. Hesse, retired police chief, to cite him for neglect of duty, on accusations of writing political speeches during office hours. He was dismissed on the charges.

When Wittner appeared for trial, Assistant District Attorney James F. Hughes notified Justice Frederick L. Siddons that a nolle prosequi of the indictment would be entered. Hughes stated the indictment was defective. Wittner is accused of obtaining a check for $500 in a real estate deal with Irving Owings. He is alleged to have represented to Owings that property involved in the deal was free of mechanical liens but the real estate broker complained after giving Wittner the check that he found the property liens had not been released. The transaction is said to have taken place in October, 1928.

Wittner has stated that the charge against him grew out of prejudice on the part of police officials against him.

LEAGUE OPENS WAR ON COUNTERFEITERS

Increase in Bogus Money Is Laid to General Use of American Notes.

33 NATIONS TAKE PART

Geneva, April 9 (N.Y.W.S.).—The most universal use of American bank notes by tourists, especially in Europe, is one of the most fruitful causes of the increased activities of international counterfeiters who annually produce millions of dollars worth of spurious currency, according to delegates to the League of Nations diplomatic conference for the suppression of counterfeiting, which opened here today.

Thirty-three countries are represented at the conference. The United States delegation includes Hugh Wilson, minister to Switzerland; William H. Doran, chief of the Treasury Department's secret service, and Elbridge Hand, United States Consul General at Geneva.

Hugh Wilson was today selected vice chairman of the conference, over which M. Fospaill, of Czechoslovakia, is presiding. Reports collected from the banks of 27 countries indicate that they alone confiscated more than $2,000,000 of counterfeit money during the three years ended in 1927.

A delegation from the international criminal police commission is participating in an advisory capacity for the first time in league affairs. (Copyright, 1929.)

HOLDUP IN CHURCH NETS ONLY $7,000

Chicago Bandits in Synagogue Force Congregation to Line Up at Wall.

Chicago, April 9 (A.P.).—Chicago's first robbery of a congregation within a church today started detectives on the trail of five young men who invaded the First Roumanian synagogue, terrorized 80 persons with revolvers and shotguns, and escaped with approximately $7,000 in money and jewelry.

The arrest of at least one of the bandits before morning was predicted by Capt. Charles McGurn, who said earlier reports putting the loss at $70,000 were erroneous.

"We made a careful check," he said, "and the loss was $7,000."

The synagogue, where the bandits entered last night cursing and threatening the worshippers with their lives unless they lined up peacefully against a wall, was one visited by Queen Marie of Roumania on her visit to Chicago in 1926.

Victor Phillips, of Bucharest, was addressing the congregation on the tenth anniversary celebration of United Roumanians, to be held May 10. The intruders marched down the center aisle, forcing Bernard J. Brownstein, former Lincoln, Nebr., April 9 (A.P.).—Otto Slade and Horace Reed, who negotiated a trade of wives without consulting the provisions of the Nebraska law on such transactions, pleaded guilty today to an information charging adultery. Their cases were taken under advisement.

District Judge Jefferson H. Broadly, before whom the men entered their plea, intimated it would require the wisdom of a Solomon to decide on suitable punishment. The judge said if it were not for the four children involved, two in each family, he would not hesitate to impose a severe penalty. To do so, however, he added, meant that the wives and children might become public charges.

Any romance that might have attached to the case passed out of the picture today so far as the traders are concerned and both returned to their jail cells in what was described as a thoroughly penitent mood. A lawyer who interested himself in behalf of the men said both were willing to return to their respective spouses if granted a parole.

The two wives in the meantime are back at their homes at Bennet looking after their children. The law permits of a prison sentence of a year for the men.

Six Countries Unite Against Banana Tax

Diplomats From Central and South America See Injustice.

(Associated Press.)

The diplomatic representatives of six Central and South American republics banded together yesterday in an attempt to dissuade Congress from placing a tariff on bananas, virtually the sole commercial product of their countries.

The diplomats are Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister of Panama, a leading exponent of the Monroe Doctrine and one of the chief exponents of Pan-Americanism; Dr. Enrique Olaya, Minister of Colombia; Juan B. Sacasa, Minister of Nicaragua; Manuel Castro Quesada, Minister of Costa Rica; Dr. Ramon Fernandez, Charge d'Affaires of Guatemala, and Prof. Carlos Izaguirre, Charge d'Affaires of Honduras.

They claim that apple growers of the United States are unjustified in seeking a tax on bananas and declare that such a tax would be discriminatory against the countries they represent. They hold there is no commercial production of bananas in the United States, and therefore the product is not in competition with the American farmer. Farmer representatives testified before the House ways and means committee that if there were fewer bananas on the market more apples could be sold.

Hoover Gets Vote On Utilities Post

Citizens Ask Him to Name One of High Candidates; Clayton Is Leader.

Results of the poll on candidates for the Public Utilities Commission, together with a petition from the poll committee that one of the first five candidates be named for the vacancy now existing on the commission, were received yesterday by President Hoover. The petition and the results of the balloting were presented by Senator Capper, of the Senate District committee, and Representative Zihlman, of the House District committee.

William McK. Clayton, with 2,410 votes, led the poll, while James J. Noonan ran second with 1,834 votes. Fred S. Walker, with 844, was third; Mrs. Grace Hays Riley, fourth, with 341, and William Albert Roberts, fifth, with 143. A total of 4,614 votes were cast for other candidates.

The petition requests the President to select one of the five leading candidates for the post now vacant and another one of the same five for the vacancy which will occur July 1. Tabulation of the votes in the utilities poll shows 46 organizations participating.

SINCLAIR TO LEARN SIMPLE LIFE IN JAIL

Plain Diet, Work and Early Hours to Be Magnate's
Lot During Stay.

3-SCORE TO BE BUDDIES

(Associated Press.)

When Harry F. Sinclair changes his name for a number, as it now seems he must, he will find about 300 summer clubbers—at the Washington Asylum and Jail—ready to welcome him into their simple life of laundering and window-washing and dominoes with slightly indifferent informality.

The wealthy oil man who defied the Senate and whose conviction was upheld by the Supreme Court, will have almost three score roommates and a family bath in a top-story apartment that gets all the summer sun, and his fare likewise will be the kind that pleases dietitians rather than epicureans.

Must Make Reptiles.

For William L. Peak, keeper of the menage, believes in the old rules of healthful living, and consequently he insists that his prisoners go early to bed, rise at 5:30 a. m., and put in a full day of work and play every 24 hours.

The first thing Sinclair will have to do upon arrival will be to answer questions. He will be ushered into the searching room, and there his "notations" will be taken. He will give his name and address, his social relations, and some description of the charge on which he was committed.

He will pass his first night in a four-tiered wing of rather crowded sleeping chambers, which serve as guest rooms as well as for permanent quarters of men awaiting trial. Here he will have two mates, who probably will give him this choice of the lower or the upper bunk slung along one wall, or the other bunk depending from the opposite wall. He can have a bath before supper, which in this club is, in reality, supper, if he likes.

Must Make Own Bed.

The next morning the millionaire will make the bed he has lain in, and present himself for breakfast—at 6:30 a. m. Then he will march back to his cell, having his finger prints taken en route, and after that the precise nature of his summer activities will be decided. Sinclair's admission card will cross Peak's desk, and probably the outcome will be "detail" work for the magnate. Peak is a man of kindly gray eyes. He has always attempted to assign prisoners to work as similar to their former professions as is legal. He said yesterday he probably would find something for Sinclair in the prison, so that he won't have to go to the workhouse at Occoquan. If the oil man hastens, he added, he can have a job in the prison office, at bookkeeping or card filing. There is a vacancy there now. Sinclair is a keen man at the jail, even if the best he can do for him is assign him to a laundry machine, or to washing windows and the other homely tasks about the dormitory.

In Sinclair's summer quarters will be four rows of beds—about three score in all—with woolly blankets folded on them. They are narrow beds, designed for simple comfort. There is plenty of sunlight here, and there are hundreds of windows to meet the absence of electric fans.

Devices for Recreation.

If Sinclair is lucky enough to get a bed alongside the wall, he'll have half of a 4-foot shelf on which to place his wardrobe. There is room on this half-shelf for a few small items, but the hooks below couldn't possibly accommodate more than two suits.

At that, the club apartment is completely appointed. Recreational devices are in the sleeping quarters—checker tables, which are equipped also with dominoes. And if the prisoner tires of these simple diversions, he can read. A little desk at one end of the dormitory holds dozens of books. Tales of the great outdoors, mystery stories, a Bible and a problem novel are waiting there.

The baths, showers for convenience, are just next door, and a completely adequate barber chair stands in one corner of the dormitory. It is a plain wooden chair, with a bath towel hung over the back for comfort, and the barber said he'd be on hand to serve Sinclair.

Aside from these, there is only one other notable object in the apartment—a list of rules. Sinclair will find on perusing them that they forbid the possession of "expensive jewelry."

Tennessee Senate Jokes Way to Jam

Unwittingly Passes Resolution to "Give Away" 33 East Counties.

Nashville, Tenn., April 9 (A.P.).—Tennessee's Senate joked itself into a perplexing predicament today by passing a resolution memorializing Congress to give 33 East Tennessee counties the right to establish the separate State of Franklin. The Senate was saved only by withdrawal of the document by its author.

The amendment allowing Shelby County, of which Memphis is the seat, to become a part of Mississippi passed with the resolution, which was introduced apparently in all seriousness by Senator Thomas Pratt (Republican) of Sullivan County. A running debate started and at its height Pratt called for the previous question.

The speaker ruled that the resolution had passed. Senator Hall (Democrat), realizing what had occurred, leaped to his feet, exclaiming, "Good heavens, men do you realize what you have done? It will take two-thirds to reconsider this thing, and we can't muster it." The senators suddenly became serious and after the veteran Senator J. J. Bean (Democrat) delivered an address on the glory of "Tennessee history, Pratt withdrew the resolution.

Family of Five Killed As Ranch Home Blazes

Akron, Colo., April 9 (A.P.).—Five persons were burned to death at a ranch house 20 miles southwest of here in a fire of undetermined origin last night. The dead are Clark Phelps, 65 years old; Florence Phelps, 40 (a daughter); Levi Phelps (a son), and the latter's children, Susie, 12, and Emma, 14. The bodies were recovered today. A woman neighbor saw the fire about 3 o'clock this morning, but thought a haystack was burning. When dawn broke, the Phelps home was seen in ruins.

Hindenburg Continues to Improve. Berlin, April 9 (A.P.).—President Paul von Hindenburg, who has been ill with influenza and gastric complications, continued today to improve and hoped to receive King Boris of Bulgaria. He had a restful night and a good appetite.

Bladder Troubles Comes From Injury

Bladder Trouble usually means that the tissues of the bladder have been injured by irritating acids or poisons in the urine. Every precaution should be taken to avoid this extremely painful and often fatal condition. Do not drink Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Ark., as an aid in preventing and treating irritation and inflammation of the bladder. A prominent doctor has written us: "There is no better water in the world for treating bladder and kidney ailments. Don't risk lifelong misery—take precaution now. Ask your doctor." Please us for a case today. We deliver.

"Bomb Trust" Case Nets New Arrests

Chicago Police Hold Three Men; Seek Two More;
One Confesses.

Chicago, April 9 (A.P.).—Three men were under arrest today and two others were being sought as the result of the seizure last night of Joseph Cero who, police said, admitted he was the "pine-apple" maker for a suspected "bomb trust."

The other men taken into custody are Luis Tufano, whom Cero is said to have implicated as a former employer, and Lorenzo Juliano, who was arrested a year ago but later released, after he was reported to have boasted that he bombed the homes of Senator Charles S. Deneen and State's Attorney John A. Swanson, then a candidate for the office.

Cero's arrest followed a three months' investigation by Sgt. George Barker, head of the detective bureau bomb squad. Police said Cero confessed to bombing several fruit stores, grocery stores and restaurants, most of them owned by Italians and paying $20 a

Texas Guinan, on Trial, Says She'll Train for Jail Food

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Texas Guinan, of the night clubs, went on trial in Federal court today, and before the first witness was half through his testimony, she announced with a smile as bright as Broadway that she was going on a diet "in preparation for prison food."

From the first bang of the gavel the taffy-haired lady of the whoopee palaces did her best to show that she could be the life of the party even when she wasn't being paid for it.

The first witness against the diamond-decked Miss Guinan, who is charged with the misdemeanor of maintaining a nuisance in the Salon Royale, was James L. White, a Washington prohibition agent. He told of going to the Salon Royale several times about a year ago and paying $20 a celved from $25 to $150 per "job." The bombing of more than 100 places in Chicago last year gave rise to the intensive investigation now being conducted.

quart for whisky and $25 for champagne. He said he saw waiters slip bottles wrapped in napkins into the laps of patrons, some of whom had to be helped to the street.

Miss Guinan seemed to enjoy it all hugely.

Before the trial opened before Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of Connecticut, Miss Guinan and ten codefendants were given a chance to plead guilty, an opportunity quickly seized by all but Miss Guinan.

"They are Greeks and don't know what guilty means," she said of her codefendants. "I will fight this out if it is the last thing I do in my life."

Cross-examination indicated that the defense would be the assertion that Miss Guinan was neither owner nor manager of the Salon Royale, but merely employed there as hostess and entertainer. In her several appearances before United States commissioners, she has steadfastly maintained this to be her sole status in the night life of New York.

Dowdy Girl's Coma Covers 1,440 Hours

Driver of Truck That Hit
Virginia Child to Get Hearing Today.

Special to The Washington Post.
Lynchburg, Va., April 9.—W. B. Bullock, 17 years old, driver of the automobile which struck Marjorie Dowdy, 10, the afternoon of February 8, will be given a hearing tomorrow in the Municipal court on a charge of reckless driving. His defense will be that the girl ran into his car while playing.

Marjorie now has been unconscious 1,440 hours. Last night she experienced good rest and today her temperature was again normal. The manner in which she looks at any one speaking to her is believed to indicate that she is beginning to take slight interest in her surroundings, though it is doubted whether she understands yet what is said to her.

She continues to accept water or grape juice from a spoon, but declines to take milk, which is fed her through a nasal tube. It was believed today that her condition was better than it has been at any time during her two months of unconsciousness.

Clerks' 2 Slayers Begin Life Terms

Harsh and Gallogly Say
They Will Obey Warden of Prison.

Milledgeville, Ga., April 9 (A.P.).—George R. Harsh, 19, member of a prominent Milledgeville, Wis., family, and Richard G. Gallogly, 18-year-old son of an Atlanta family, entered the State prison here late today to begin service of their sentence to life imprisonment for murder in an attempted holdup.

Both youths were reconciled to their future and on the trip from Atlanta with B. H. Dunaway, superintendent of the State prison farm, said they intended to do the bidding of the warden.

They will be assigned to "general farm work." Life sentences were imposed on the two youths in Fulton County Superior Court last week, when they entered pleas of guilty to murder in the slaying of Willard Smith, a drug clerk, last October, in an attempted holdup of the store. Smith wounded Harsh in an exchange of bullets.

You are Paying for a Packard Why not Own One?

SEVENTY per cent of those who buy the Packard Standard Eight give up other makes of cars—thousands in the ten to fifteen hundred dollar class. These new owners quickly learn—

That it costs no more to operate and maintain a Packard than their old cars—cars costing even a thousand dollars less.

And that it costs no more to own a Packard because Packard owners keep their cars nearly twice as long and drive them nearly twice as far as the lower-priced cars they trade in.

Those who buy on the payment plan find—

That they keep their cars several times as long as it takes to pay for them—a relief to those who have made monthly payments every other year on other cars.

And that on the average, the value of their used cars equals or exceeds the down payment on the new car—leaving each small monthly payment the largest cash outlay in the having of a Packard.

Ninety-four out of every hundred who buy Packard cars never leave the Packard family but continue to buy Packard cars—proof that "Ask The Man Who Owns One" means just what it says.

Now $160 Less

All models of the Packard Standard Eight were reduced $160 on March 4 and the new prices are as follows:

126-Inch Wheelbase Models
The Sedan, 5 Pass.	$2275
The Coupe, 2 Pass.	2350
The Convertible Coupe, 2 Pass.	2425
133-Inch Wheelbase Models
The Runabout, 2 Pass.	$2375
The Phaeton, 5 Pass.	2375
The Touring, 7 Pass.	2475
The Coupe, 4 Pass.	2575
The Club Sedan, 5 Pass.	2575
The Sedan, 7 Pass.	2575
The Sedan-Limousine, 7 Pass.	2675
(Prices at the factory)

When may we examine your used car and tell you how easily you may have a luxurious new Packard Eight? You will be under no obligation in giving us an opportunity to serve you.

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is economy. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contracted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—time strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

WHEN A MAN DRIVES HIS CAR

You want style in your car; in the lines, in the color scheme. But you can't wear your car when you're getting business or making friends. You must have style yourself: you must look well-dressed and prosperous—if you intend to impress people. Cars are hard on clothes of course—but good clothes are such an important factor in success that car or no car, an ambitious man must make a good appearance

MILL-STRIKE TROOPS ARE TO BE RECALLED

Militia Commander Asserts
Patrol at Gastonia, N. C.,
Will End at Once.

DEPUTIES PUT IN CHARGE

Charlotte, N. C., April 9 (A.P.).—Two companies of National Guard troops, which have been patrolling the Lenoir mills at Gastonia, N. C., where more than 1,000 textile workers of Manville-Jencks Co. are on strike, will be withdrawn at once, it was announced today from headquarters there of Adj. Gen. J. Van P. Metts.

This was the chief development in the strike situation in the two Carolinas today as 8,000 textile workers continued idle. At Gastonia and Pineville, N. C., the strikes are said to have been called by the National Textile Workers Union. Several hundred employees of the Wendenah mills at Lexington, N. C., are protesting against a wage cut, and at Greenville, Union, Anderson and Woodruff, S. C., and at Forest City, N. C. textile workers are out in protest against "efficiency" systems.

Employees Present Demands.

Striking employees of the Florence cotton mill at Forest City, N. C., today presented a list of demands to mill officials, and offered to return to work if they were granted. The list included a 20 per cent increase in wages, dismissal of J. C. McGarahan, efficiency expert, and restoration of working conditions that existed before employment of McGarahan. The demands were taken under advisement by mill officials.

Leaders of the Forest City strike said they were not connected with a union.

of Newport, R. I., who was voted the prettiest of seventeen Boston University girls elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Five units of national guardsmen have been on duty at Gastonia since Wednesday night, when a near riot was threatened. The decision to withdraw them was made at a conference today between the military authorities, Judge N. A. Townsend, executive counselor to Gov. C. Max Gardner, and the city and county officials at Gastonia and Gaston County.

All the units will be withdrawn as soon as possible. It was announced, after the conference, with two leaving at once. The first to depart may start for its home station tomorrow.

Deputies to Be Used.

To replace the guardsmen, city and county officials agreed that a special force of deputies should take over the protection. They said members of the American Legion and veterans of the World War would be given preference when the deputies were selected.

At the conference Judge Townsend informed the authorities that Gov. Gardner wishes to withdraw the troops as soon as possible. Gen. Netts opposed immediate withdrawal, but the plan for deputy protection was worked out and it was announced the withdrawal would start at once.

At Pineville, mill officials admitted today that a part of the mill was crippled by the walk out. Yesterday they said that at 10 o'clock in the morning the plant was operating normally, but admitted today that only two-thirds of the machinery operated last night. The full weave room was operating today, B. B. Gossett, president, said, but the card and spinning department were operating only just enough to allow the weave room to continue.

Teachers of History To Hold Convention

Social Science Instructors Will Join Session That Begins Friday.

The twenty-sixth annual spring meeting of the Association of Teachers of the Middle States and Maryland, in conjunction with the Round Table of the Teachers of Social Sciences of Washington will be held Friday and Saturday at the Washington Hotel.

Miss Cornelia Whitney, George J. Jones, E. S. Noyes, A. M. Vilet and Miss Suzanne B. Waters are the local committee in charge of the meetings. While the hotel will be headquarters for the convention, meetings will be held in various places in the Capital. The Friday afternoon session will be held at 3:30 o'clock in the J. O. Wilson Normal School Auditorium; the Friday evening dinner in the roof garden dining room of the Washington Hotel and the Saturday morning meeting in McMahon Hall assembly room at Catholic University. Officers of the association are Kathryn E. C. Carrigan, Atlantic City, president; Carlton J. H. Hayes, Columbia University, vice president; and Lena C. Van Bibber, Maryland State Normal School, secretary-treasurer.

Huge Toll of Cancer Revealed by Doctor

More people die from cancer than from all of the things known as "acts of God," such as hurricanes, floods, volcanoes and other eruptions of the elements, Dr. Henry H. Kerr, president of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, told the Washington Round Table at the University Club yesterday. Dr. Kerr said that 500,000 persons die each year from cancer, and that in the United States 100,000 die each year. Between the ages of 45 and 65 one out of every five women die of cancer, and one out of every eight men, Dr. Kerr said. Dr. Kerr stated that cancer begins as local disease, and, if checked at this point, the victim can be cured. Unfortunately, he added, the disease from which it starts does not trouble the victim sufficiently to demand immediate attention. He advocated educating the public so that they would know the first symptoms of cancer.

Bus Line Fare Is Cut For Rides in District

Reduced fare in an effort to increase regular business has been put in effect by the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis motor bus line and approved by the Public Utilities Commission. It was announced yesterday. The company heretofore has been selling four tokens for 50 cents for rides in the District, but asked and received permission to sell ten tokens for $1, to induce greater patronage by regular customers. The commission ordered the company to make careful check of the number of passengers carried during April and May this year as compared with the same months last year to permit it to judge public reaction to the change. If the experiment works out well it will be continued in effect.

WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED AS VICTIM OF TORCH

Burned Body Said to Be That of Mrs. R. M. Campbell, of Greenville, Pa.

CLEW IN ARCH SUPPORT

Greenville, Pa., April 9 (A.P.).—The identity of a woman whose burned body was found near Cranford, N. J., last February 23, was believed established today by Greenville police. Friends of Mrs. Richard M. Campbell, formerly Mrs. Mildred Mowry, of Greenville, widow of Benjamin F. Mowry, said that the description of the murdered woman fitted that of Mrs. Campbell.

The police here became interested in the case recently, when they received a circular from Elizabeth, N. J., authorities, saying the victim's shoes, one containing an arch support, might have been purchased in Greenville. Yesterday they obtained a full description of the murdered woman and they found that it tallied in detail with that of Mrs. Campbell—5 feet 5½ inches tall, weighing 155 pounds, light brown hair, shot with gray, dental bridge work in the upper jaw, eyes blue, the left shoe fitted with an arch support, and a finger stiffened at one joint.

Mrs. Campbell left Greenville, February 1, 1929. On August 28, 1928, she married Richard M. Campbell, of Baltimore and New York, who was known as a "doctor" and later as a building contractor. The marriage took place at Elkton, Md. Friends here received postcards from New York City on February 15 last. A few days later they received cards from her from the Chester (Pa.) Y. W. C. A. All efforts to trace her from Chester have failed.

The victim of the New Jersey killing had been drenched with gasoline and set on fire after she had been shot in the top of the head and the head crushed with a heavy instrument. Friends recalled that after marrying Campbell, the woman returned here, expecting her husband to follow her. Advised that rings found on the crippled finger of the New Jersey victim contained the initial "M," friends said Mrs. Campbell's ring finger was crippled and that her rings contained the initial of her previous name, Mildred Mowry.

THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright protected. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

THE HUNT FOR A WOODEN IDOL. CHAPTER IV. On the Hunt for Alice.

The Bradys met George Woo and are conducted through the underground passage to the secret house. Here they are trapped by some Chinese. Woo escapes and brings the police. He then tells them Alice has been kidnapped by Ah Sam's agent.

OLD KING BRADY was greatly disturbed when Harry informed him next morning of Alice's disappearance. The Bradys decided to get down to the Bowers and see what they could do to locate her. They went directly to the old building and inquired about the meeting rooms upstairs. The storekeeper allowed the Bradys to look into the yard but as they started for the back hall door they noticed a young Chinaman in American dress, watching them. As they stepped into the yard he advanced toward them and spoke in good English, "Excuse me, but aren't you Old King Brady?"

"That's right," said the old detective. "What about it?" "I thought perhaps you were looking for a fellow I saw pulled in here last night," said the Chinaman, lowering his voice. "You see," he added, "I've done some detective work for Mr. Gallagher. It was he pointed you out to me. He displayed a special badge which some of the Chinese detectives were allowed to wear. He added that his name was George Woo."

"About half past ten last night," he said, "I was walking down the street and two Chinamen came in through this door dragging a third. They carried him down into the cellar and that's the last I saw of him. I thought you might be interested."

"Can you describe this Chinaman?" asked the old detective. "George Woo gave a description that certainly fitted Alice."

"You lead the way, Woo, let's have a look at the cellar," said Old King Brady. He got out his flashlight. They paused at the bottom of the steps. The place was littered with trash. Old King Brady poked around and found what he was looking for. "Here's a secret door. Look, Harry, these barrels are fastened together and fastened to the wall."

Harry took hold of the barrels and gave a pull. They yielded and as he swung them out into the cellar a low passage extending through the foundation wall was revealed.

Following the Trail Underground. Old King Brady made a careful search for a spring or latch, but failed to find any. He pushed the barrels into place again; when he pulled them out again they came readily. "Very mysterious," he muttered. "They were firm enough when I first took hold of them."

"Let's push ahead," urged Harry. "We will be very careful." They crawled through into the next cellar, where George Woo stood flashing his light about. The cellar was empty. In the center of the floor was a flagstone. Woo caught and pulled up on it. It yielded and disclosed another passage.

They descended into a subcellar at one end of which was a wooden door about four feet high. They advanced toward it. Harry stooped suddenly and picked up a long slender stick of highly polished wood. "I wonder what this is," he questioned. One end was shaped like a spear. Old King Brady caught hold of the door and it swung open, revealing a small room in which a light was burning. All hands peered through the door. "The wooden idol!" exclaimed Woo. "At last!"

It was a wooden idol all right, but not the one that the Bradys were seeking. This was a half-length figure of the sitting Buddha that rested on a table in a niche in the wall. There was no window and no other door. Up near the ceiling was an iron pipe about four inches in diameter, which the Bradys took to be a ventilator. They went all over the room, but were unable to discover anything of the least interest. At last they gave up and Old King Brady announced they would return.

All right, said Woo, who was standing nearest the opening, and he limply sprang through before Old King Brady had time to order him to the rear as he had intended. The door slammed in his face. He stared it and pulled on it. The door was as firm as a rock.

"Trapped!" cried Harry. "Serves us right," said Old King Brady. "Well, we are in a fix, so we must make the best of it. I wonder what will happen next."

"We must get out of this at once," said the old detective. "I don't like the looks of that pipe up there. It may be intended for ventilation, but it is just as likely to be a pipe to carry water to drown the victims of the Highlanders."

They failed to find any means of exit. Fifteen minutes found them at the end of their rope. After what his chief had suggested Harry kept an eye on the pipe. They were not kept in suspense long.

Suddenly there was a rush of air and then the water descended in a stream the full size of the pipe. "There it is," cried Harry. "Old King Brady. Now you see I was right. They mean to drown us out."

Yes, and I don't see how we are going to stop it," cried Harry in despair. The water spread rapidly over the floor and then began to rise. Once more they rested every effort. Every instant the peril was increasing. The water was now up to their knees. Suddenly the panel flew open and three Chinamen appeared armed with clubs. Old King Brady made a grab at one and Harry advanced with the one he had found outside. Old King Brady got the club he grabbed for. Harry jabbed one of them with the spear end of his club and sent him reeling backward. Just then loud shouts were heard in the distance.

Instantly the Chinamen pulled away and slammed the panel shut. "Bad luck!" growled Harry. "If I had only thought to use my revolver instead of this ridiculous club, we could have got the best of them."

"Don't blame yourself," panted Old King Brady. "They didn't give us a show. I wonder what the racket was about? If I had only—Hark! They are coming again."

Somebody was fumbling with the fastenings of the panel above. They vanished into some rat hole. You may thank Woo here for your rescue. He came after me hotheaded. They now climbed out and left by the way they had come. As they passed out on to Pell street, they asked Gallagher if George Woo was working for the police. "No, but for me privately," was the reply. "Woo had all he could do to give those Chinks the slip. They locked the door and set upon him, but he got away."

They pushed on to Chatham Square where they took a back. As soon as they were alone Harry said, "What do you think of it, Governor? Woo claims he had nothing to do with our imprisonment."

"I don't know what to believe, Harry. I must confess that door shut a little too quick, but I think it was a blunder leading up to something else."

"Exactly what I think," agreed Harry. The Bradys went home and changed into dry clothes. They returned to Chinatown and spent the remainder of the day in a vain search for Alice. Twice during the day they dropped into the postoffice hoping for an answer to Old King Brady's advertisement, but there was none.

Just as the detectives finished their supper the bell rang. Harry found George Woo standing outside. "Mr. Gallagher told me your young lady is missing, and I've found a clew. I found the fellow who took her place in the doorway."

Just as the detectives finished their supper the bell rang. Harry found George Woo standing outside. "Mr. Gallagher told me your young lady is missing, and I've found a clew. I found the fellow who took her place in the doorway."

"You did! Well, what's become of her?" "She was turned over to Ah Sam, the man who has been helping Old Man Jenkins in his smuggling business. We told me that she was taken aboard a tug, where Ah Sam and his wife were—he's married Jenkins' daughter, Yip says."

"But where was she to be taken in the tug?" asked Old King Brady. "That Yip didn't know. But I thought I'd come and tell you. I want you to believe in me. You may need a fellow to help you in your Chinese sometimes, and I'd like the job, see?"

Old King Brady did not know what to make of Woo, but at all events his information regarding Alice was correct. "Telephone for a cab, Harry, and we'll pay Mr. Jenkins a visit. So they started up to Sixty-sixth street."

Another installment in this thrilling serial will appear in tomorrow's issue. Don't miss it! Old King Brady is on the trail of a hideous wooden idol.

WHEREIN MR. TWITCHELL IS DEEPLY GRATEFUL.
(Setting-up exercises were branded silly, superstitious and artificial today by Dr. Jesse Piering Williams, of Columbia Teachers College. Jumping from bed at the sound of an alarm clock and going through radio calisthenics was denounced as absurd by Dr. Williams, who stated also that the alarm clock damaged the nervous system and should be abolished.—News item.)

Dear Dr. Williams: I salute you as a courageous citizen. Of all views advanced on any and all topics during the present year, yours are the most comforting, and it took a brave man to broadcast them. Anybody who doesn't hop out of bed and wriggle around like a wounded crawfish in the interest of health and a better waistline is considered a bad citizen, a poor specimen and something of a silly cat, and I salute a man who has nerve enough to hold otherwise.

I have been doing setting-up exercises for years and don't feel any better than when I began. Symmetrically I am as hard on the eyes as ever. All I have got to show for years of twisting and weaving is a hatred of gymnasium workers and feeling of total irreverence for the memory of Walter Camp. I have always felt that these setting-up exercises were the bunk, but I have been a slave to convention. There have been mornings when I skipped the calisthenics, but I would always go back to them after a day or two with the feeling that they were a sort of public duty. I had come to regard the daily dozen as a form of patriotism. All that I needed to stop the nonsense was a little public encouragement from some man of distinction, and you have set me free.

I also approve of what you say about alarm clocks. They ruin my nerves, and I would toss my clock out of the window were it not for the fact that when I sleep over and am late to work the rebuke I get from the boss does more damage to my nervous system than the alarm clock does.

Your denunciation of the cold shower gives me great comfort, too, as I have always been opposed to this barbarity.

WRONG AGAIN!
Vice President Curtis has protested a ruling seating his hostess at formal dinners in precedence below the wives of ambassadors and ministers. And we thought this a great big democratic country where there was no complaint as long as the celery was kept where everybody could reach it!

Wisconsin has voted to repeal the dry law, and by this time the Anti-Saloon League forces are probably completing plans to shill it.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Now, there is only one more thing I want you to do to make me very happy, and that is to come out and tell me that a man is a fool to lay off potatoes and soups and pastries. Like eight out of ten Americans, I have been on a diet, but it doesn't seem to make any difference in my general appearance or vigor. I still look like a sack of oats and feel that all forms of work require a great effort. If you would, only denounce diets it would make me very happy.

I slew a man this morning—The first pest of the year: He blurted without warning, "Well, summertime is here!"

The latest rumor in book circles is that Joan Lowell, author of "Cradle of the Deep," is to marry Trader Horn, with Congressman Morgan as the best man.

A jolly good fellow must be Paul Robertson, president of the Business Owners Association of Pittsburgh. "He radiates intelligence and imbues one with confidence," says the organization's official bulletin.

The BIG 3 motor products

Why "Standard" Gasoline is the best gasoline to buy.

It never varies in quality . . . one drop or a thousand gallons, it is always crystal clear, uniform in grade, full of power.

Because point by point, specification by specification "Standard" is consistently the leader in quality.

Because no matter where you buy it from the big red "Standard" pump with the "Standard" globe, it is sold with a guarantee of purity and maximum performance. Because back of it is an institution which believes in service and gives it unsparingly—no matter who the purchaser may be or what the quantity he may buy.

"STANDARD" GASOLINE

What makes "Standard" Motor Oil superior.

Any oil up to a certain point will cushion and protect moving motor parts, but only a special oil will stand up to the last drop against extraordinary temperatures peculiar to current motor designs, or will resist equally well crank case dilution. "Standard" is an extraordinary motor oil. Processed from the finest crudes and deliberately refined to withstand excessive temperatures and to protect everlastingly each and every moving part no matter what the oil feed design may be.

It is literally "an oilier oil which clings and clings." And clinging and protecting—eliminates friction.

Dunlap Cuts N. A. A. Talk On Weather

Will Be Confined to Capital and Neighboring States and Last Two Minutes. Many Have Complained of Interference.

In a commendable effort to please the radio public, and as a direct result of complaints registered by Post readers, the lengthy weather report which has been broadcast at 10:05 o'clock each night by station NAA at Arlington for several years past has been greatly curtailed by order of R. W. Dunlap, Acting Secretary of Agriculture. As broadcast last night, instead of giving Washington listeners weather forecasts for the entire United States they were confined to the District of Columbia, nearby States and the Atlantic seaboard. The broadcast occupied less than two minutes.

The question had been raised as to why it was necessary to tell Arlington station to take up the time of local listeners during program hours at night, excepting perhaps the weather, what the weather was in the District of Columbia and possibly in adjacent territory. Points were further made that NAA with its present power of but 1,000 watts could not possibly reach the territory directly concerned in its broadcasts.

In advising the Post of the curtailment, Acting Secretary Dunlap wrote as follows: "This department in its endeavor to serve agricultural and commercial interests has organized and maintained the program of broadcasting these reports morning and evening from Arlington through co-operation with the Navy Department, and from the favorable comments received concerning the usefulness of the information broadcast, it is felt entirely justified in maintaining this program."

"It is our understanding that the evening broadcast is the one to which exception is taken and we are, therefore, not planning any change in the morning schedule."

In the past complaint has not only been made with regard to the length of the night weather broadcast, but also to the time signals at night. It is wise that the quality of the transmission is poor due to the fact that the NAA transmitter is not suited to program broadcasts. The latter comment was heard at the time of the Pan-American and Library of Congress Chamber Music broadcasts. Admittedly NAA is not at present equipped to put on high-class program broadcasts in comparison with the manner listeners are now accustomed to having it done by commercial stations.

Also there was criticism of the Arlington announcers—that their work was unsuited to program broadcasting. "They have heavy voices and broadcast like a bunch of schoolboys," one reader wrote.

However, more numerous have been complaints in the past that the too broad, takes up too much space on the dial, and at times is almost impossible to tune out. A year or so ago we recall listening on night over station WRC to Miss Maria Jettis, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, singing a beautiful aria from "Lohengrin" when suddenly NAA turned loose and almost blew us out of our chair. It was with difficulty that we succeeded in tuning it out, though now we have a more highly selective set and are able to do so much easier.

About that time we remember that Frederick William Will registered a complaint with Secretary Hoover because listeners instead of hearing the former's political talks, could only get the time signals and the weather reports. Mr. Will told us he was receiving letters by the basketful. It is our recollection that as a result of the widespread complaint made at that time there was to have been a conference between Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Secretary of the Navy Willbur and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to see if the station could be run in such a way that we never heard whether this meeting was actually held.

Of late, we do doubt to listeners installing more highly selective sets, we have heard less complaint with regard to the broadness of NAA, though every now and then we run across someone who reports that he is not able to tune the station out.

JUS FOLKS

—By KING A. GUEST—

As I was walking down the street I crushed a spider near my feet. A living thing that knew the sun and died before it was done! A living thing that knew the rain and possibly both joy and pain; A spider that could spin a lace With more than human skill and grace What was its purpose? Why that day It crossed my path and I was there And yet I wondered, strangely thrilled, What spider plans my foot had killed. Would other spiders wait in vain For one they loved to come again? Do spiders have their heartaches, too, And broken dreams as humans do? And do they as we spin and creep Know what it is to laugh or weep? Or do they merely live and crawl Only because man's foot is to fall?

Answer me this, you sage-wise: What happens when a spider dies? (Copyright, 1929.)

Hopkins Men Will Sing on Air Tonight

"Deep River" Included in Melodies of Glee Club on WMAL Revelers Quartet on WRC—Miss Dean Sings on WOL.

The Musical Club of Johns Hopkins University will be presented during the Kolster Hour at 10 o'clock on WMAL. The key station will be WCAO, Baltimore. The Glee Club follows its tradition by opening with the "University Ode," by DeVries. The second number is the old negro melody, "Deep River." Then in lighter vein, comes a campus interpretation of "I Faw Down and Go Boom," with special words by Bennett Kaib, president of the organization, and sung by an impromptu trio under his direction.

The Banjo Club, under the direction of Conrad Gabelein, and composed of twenty string instruments, then plays the "Washington Post March," by John Philip Sousa. "Blue Grass" and "Out of the Dawn." Next is introduced the Variety Quartette, singing "When Pa Was a Little Boy" and "Dear Old Johnny Hopkins." Next is introduced an unusual group, as far as University Glee clubs are concerned—the Hawaiian Troupe with characteristic soft music. It is the "Kohala March" and "Kukule Lady." With Louis Llewellyn singing the barytone solo parts, the Glee Club presents the "Recessional," by Dr. Koven. The grand finale comes with the singing of "Hopkins Medley."

"The Danger Signal," a romance of the early days of railroading in the West, will be presented by Hank Simmons and his Show Boat Company at 8 o'clock from WMAL.

The WABC Musical Comedy Company will be heard through WMAL at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Rasbach musical setting of Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees," will be sung by Paul Oliver, tenor soloist, during the nation wide broadcast by the Palmolive Hour over the NBC System, including WRC, at 9:30 o'clock. With Palmer, soprano soloist, of the hour, he will sing in due the new song, "Something to Live For," from the current musical play, "Spring is Here."

The Revelers quartet will present their own original version of "I Love You Truly" and "With a Song in My Heart."

Charles Michelson, Washington correspondent of the New York World, will be the speaker of "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight," broadcast at 7:45 o'clock.

Julian Oliver, tenor, will be presented again in a group of Spanish numbers during the Sunkist Serenaders half-hour.

Dick Rodgers, the New York boy, who suddenly found himself famous when he wrote Columbia University musical variety show at the age of 17, will be guest soloist with the Happy Bakers, who have now had fourteen musical comedies to their credit, including "Connecticut Yankee" and "Garlick Gaities." His newest, recently opened in New York, "Spring is Here," and his selections for the Wonder Bakers program will be piano solos from its score.

Overture to "The Impresario," Mozart; "To Spring," Grieg; "Transfiguration," J. Strauss; selection from "Grand Duet," Offenbach; Romance and Two Dances, German; "Menuet," Korostenkova; "Gloria," Liszt; "Lullaby," Chopin; and "Solitude," Labia.

Estelle Hunt Dean, soprano, accompanied by Margaret Ganges, will again be heard from WMAL at 6:15 o'clock in a request program. Mrs. Dean will sing "I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come in," "Carolina Moon," "Lay My Head Down," "A Rose and a Lover," "Come Back to Me."

Hook Kennedy, the Jolly Scot, will be presented at 7 o'clock, followed by James Keane, who sang his bow last

IS, FA VORITE, WILS OVER FILLIES AT BOWIE

Ready Second In Feature By Length

Mimic, at 25-1, Beats 3-Year-Olds in Fifth Race.

Islam, Pascuma Up, Easy Winner in Second Race.

By CHARLES A. WATSON (Staff Correspondent).

BOWIE RACE TRACK, April 9.—Another Derby and Preakness candidate gave an exhibition of speed and quality today at Bowie when Mimic, a colt of the late William F. Scheld and energetically ridden by Jockey A. Robertson, emerged victor in the Pads and Paces race, offered as the main attraction of an excellent racing card.

Six flashy fillies paraded to the post for the 5 1/2 furlong dash, and the W. F. Scheld-trained miss deservedly won a place in the hearts of the racing enthusiasts when she galloped off with the event in clever fashion.

My Sis Takes Afternoon Feature From Ready.

The daughter of Tryster-Gurgling Water raced forwardly all the way after catching her stride and won with ease in reserve from Samuel Rose's Ready, which she beat to the wire by a length and a half. Earl Sande's Spectre, with Benham in the saddle, finished third, a few lengths away, to beat Business out for third money.

The race provided one of the most starts in the history of the track, with a rush to the post and a short delay at the barrier when Starter Milton shouted, "Come on," and only Lady Joan and My Sis were ready. Lady Joan broke running, closely followed by My Sis. Then came Ready, Spectre, Business and Sunny Port.

My Sis quickly outdistanced Lady Joan and opened up a wide gap. Jockey Fields, on Ready, gradually made up lost ground and in the stretch almost reached the winner, which was only galloping to the wire.

Mimic in Surprise Victory Over Tom Kanty in Fifth.

P. S. P. Randolph's Mimic, paying $45.00 to $2, sprang a surprise in the fifth race by beating a field of 11 fillies, displaying a tremendous burst of speed, defeated Tom Kanty by a half length. Vimont was third a scant head in front of Wm. Scheld's Ready.

Kathleen B. set a sizzling pace to the first turn and opened up a long lead only to lose it at the half pole to the fast-coming Guntner. Tom Kanty, far back in the early running, tried to get through close quarters in the stretch run, but did not meet much success.

Mimic won going away, but it was any one's race so closely was the field bunched at the end of the mile and sixteenth that the race was a close one.

Racing in a driving race over a track which was fast becoming soft, Iraq, guided son of Omar Khayyam-Sombra, running under the colors of E. W. Wink, triumphed for the second consecutive time within the past few days when he led home a field of 11 fillies in the final number on the day's program at Bowie. Polvo, from the stable of Mrs. J. W. Potter, was second by half a length, with Intrepid, another recent winner, finishing third. Iraq was a 2-1 favorite.

Jockey G. Zaleski sent Iraq to the front at the rate of the webbing and raced forwardly all the way to earn the award. The Runt offered much contention in the early running, but Intrepid just behind him. The winner was never in danger and looked poised the best of the ordinary field that struggled over the mile and sixteenth route, which was covered in the excellent time of 1:48 2-5.

Five players of the better sort went to the post for the sixth race of a mile and a sixteenth. The winner was furnished by D. Boyle in Gay Parisian, which won in a stretch drive over Lucky Drift. Brahman was third.

Lucky Drift, under Jockey R. Lehman, set out at a merry clip and held on gamely to the stretch run, where Jockey H. Thomas unfolded a couple of wraps on the Boyle gelding to bring him home in front by two and one-half lengths. Coral Boss, always within reach of the leaders, folded up when the real test came and finished fourth.

Twelve brisk maiden 2-year-olds paraded to the post for the initial number which opened the day's program of 4 furlongs, with the late William F. Scheld's Ready, which gained a length decision over Harry Payne Whitney's Dress Ship. Wild Apple, racing in the colors of E. W. Wink, finished third, another length behind the Whitney colt. Wanderer Gold was fourth.

Running the distance in the excellent time of 0:48, Phillip proved much the best and led the field throughout the entire journey, due to the alertness of Jockey J. Shanks, who had the most of the George Wingfield Stable's speedster. Most of the contention came in the last 100 yards, when the late William F. Scheld's Ready, from Dress Ship and Wild Apple, Charloter, from the McLean Stable, suffered much interference soon after the break and could never get on.

Islam Scores Easy Victory in Second Race.

The McLean Stable's Islam, ridden by Jockey A. Pascuma and making his first start of the year, scored an impressive victory in the second race of 6 furlongs, covering the three-quarters in 1:13 3-5. Fair Thorn was second, just in front of the fast-coming Ready, which ran into third place.

The son of The Porter made a runaway affair of the number and won as far as you could throw a stone. Ready made a belated rush through the field in the stretch, but could not overtake the leaders. Jack Crahn was ridden all over the track and was not persevered with.

Thills galore were provided with the running of the 6 furlongs of the third race which went to Emil Herr's fleet son of Mainton, Pigeon Wing II, in the fast time of 1:22 2-5.

Holly Teaty Breaks Through Barrier and Runs Away.—Just prior to the start, Holly Teaty broke through the barrier and ran away for a quarter of a mile before Jockey C. Grams could get his head. Returning to the gate, Starter Milton sent the field away in good alignment. Jockey Robertson sent Intrepid to the front, and opened up a wide gap. Fair Thorn, Pigeon Wing II and Listerine followed in the order named until the stretch turn was reached, where the Herr racer took second place followed by Listerine. Hypnotism seemed to have the race well in hand, but Intrepid, which he best by a nose. Ruby Keller was fourth.

Bocarbonate ran afloat of the ropes guarding the mile and sixteenth chute, throwing his rider, P. McGinnis, and pulling up very lame. Listerine, after finishing, lost Jockey H. Kenly, her rider, and then ran away for a mile and a sixteenth, before being stopped by "Red Coat" Murray and his lead pony in regular circus fashion.

BEST HORSES GATHERING AT GRAW

Return of Sande to Saddle at Bowie Is Delayed.

THE twelve-day meeting of the Harford Agricultural and Amusement Association, which opens at Harve de Grace on Monday, promises to be one of the best in the history of racing at the historic Harford, situated on the banks of the Susquehanna River.

Stars of the racing world are rapidly taking up quarters at Harford and by the week-end it is expected every available stall will be occupied by the cream of America's thoroughbreds. Many horses were on the track this morning pointing for the various stakes and remarkable time was recorded in many instances. Almost every first-class thoroughbred now in training will be seen in the numerous events carded for the two weeks' racing.

There are already many prominent stables located at the course. Among the leaders are Foxcatcher Farms, Mrs. J. Simpson Dean, George D. Widener, Glen Riddle Stable, W. Brodie, Kalspa Farm, E. J. Holland and J. J. McCarthey. The stables of Walter J. Kilmor, R. T. Wilson, H. Teller Archibald and R. C. McLean are due to arrive later on in the week.

Stars that will appear during the meeting include the late Jock from the McLean Stable, Bateau, Streamline, Constitution and Lido, belonging to Walter M. Jeffords; Battiship Grey, Shipmaster, on Her Toss, from the stable of Samuel Riddle; Willis Sharp Kilmor's fleet Sun Beau and many others of equal note.

Bob Frueh, assistant to Starter James Milton, schooled in the neighborhood of 60 horses at the "Graw" this morning. "Long Taw" Water, in charge of the barrier here at Bowie during the early hours, broke 51 older horses and 24 2-year-olds from the gate today.

James F. O'Hara's untimely illness has necessitated his absence from the track so far during the meeting, but the general manager has a worthy assistant in Joseph Farrell, Jr., who has taken hold of the reins and filled his job to perfection. O'Hara is fortunate in having a man of such sterling ability who can follow the liberal policy established by the Baltimore race magnate. Reports from the Monumental City say that Mr. O'Hara is improving daily and was out in the open yesterday in a wheelchair.

Dr. H. J. McCarthy will conduct a sale in the paddock Wednesday beginning at 12 o'clock of horses in training.

Edward J. Brennan, racing secretary at the Cumberland Fair, announced today that a week's racing would be held at the fair grounds beginning July 1, with Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Cambria County Exposition.

Charles Forrest took Tom Kanty out of the fifth race through the claiming process, but the latter was only received Guntner in a like manner. Both horses brought $2,500.

A record number of favorites have scored so far during the meeting, there being no less than 50 per cent of the choices taking down first money.

Donald Merger has signed to ride for the powerful Kalspa Farm Stable. Jockey W. Harey was named to ride the late William F. Scheld's Ready, which was to start in the second race yesterday, and Jockey Tony Pascuma was named for charging across the field in the third race.

The lucky star of Earl Sande seems to have deserted him. The former rider, ace of the Silclair and Widener establishments, instead of making an early return to the saddle, was thwarted by a severe cold and a bronchitis attack prevented the colorful rider from piloting one of his thoroughbreds. Tomorrow he is expected to return to the saddle, but it is doubtful if he will be able to do so.

Fortune prevented his effort when the Bud Lerner filly failed to arrive at Prince George Park.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT OF KINGS

COOTS! Get the name straight, brother. We are not speaking, in fact, not even thinking of "coots." War days are over. This good 3-year-old gelding from the H. P. Wingfield Stable and he has been tuned to concert pitch. Go for all the kale in the second spasm and should make every post a winning one. FAIRY RING is the only eligible having even an outside chance to show him the shortest way home.

BRANCH drew a bad post position. CATADROS well as last time. JACK ADAMS can do better than this last race would indicate. All things considered this is a good one to allow to run for Mr. Sweeney, the gent who manufactures the morgan.

MAJESTIC MINSTER has rounded to form and will be hard to trim in the third, with LET ALONE standing a chance to show improvement. In the fourth POLY CLOUDY and WALK EAGLE hook up again practically at the same weights. POLY has the most speed but CLOUDY may be going to him at the end. WAR EAGLE fancies a longer route.

AUCILLA and TIFIN appear to have fifth between them with the chances favoring the former. Selling papers clash in the sixth and seventh. Large fields are carded and anything is liable to happen. The events should be passed up. However, FOREHAND and KOSCIUSKO appear best.

14 MIDGET NINES SEEK TO PLAY IN LEGION SERIES

20 Entrants In League Likely

10 Teams Still Seek Legion Posts as Sponsors.

Tennyson Speaks on Changes in Playing Rules This Year.

TWELVE of the strongest midget nines of Washington and vicinity last night announced their intentions to compete in the Capital City Legion midget section, the American Legion championship series, sponsored by The Washington Post and the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion.

Rules to govern both series were discussed and preliminary organization effected.

Two other Legion Posts have previously announced their intentions of entering teams in addition to those represented at last night's meeting, bringing the total number of prospective teams in this division to fourteen. It is indicated that at least twenty teams will engage in the two divisions of the midget section.

George Youngblood, coach of the Delano Post team, made arrangements with the manager of the Royals nine to combine the candidates already signed by two teams to compete under the Delano Post, Lincoln Post had previously adopted the Lionels.

Teams Still Seeking Posts as Sponsors.

The teams represented at last night's meeting were: A. J. Lyons, Delano Post, Lincoln Post, George Slaters, Sam Rice, Russell, North Capitol Savings Bank, which is made up largely of last year's Boys' Club Standard players under Coach John Suter; Brookland Boys' Club, Alexandria White Sox, Columbia Heights, Corinthians and All-Stars.

Ten of these teams are seeking Legion posts to sponsor them in the series. Delano, Lincoln, Victory and George Washington posts have announced their intentions to enter the series. The latter has not secured a team as yet.

W. W. Watt, manager of the Legion series, is canvassing the posts of Washington in an effort to have every midget team adopted before the season opens in May.

Richard S. Tennyson, vice president of the league, who presided in the absence of Col. Hjalmer Erickson, president, pointed out the changes made in the rules to govern the series this season. A request was made to ask the national headquarters of the league for an interpretation of several regulations. These interpretations will be announced as soon as a reply is received by the local officials.

Insect and Junior Teams Hold Meeting Tonight.

Representatives of teams planning to enter the insect and junior sections of the Capital City League will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Room 2 of the District Building. Each team is requested to send no more than two representatives. All teams interested in competing for the championships of these sections should be present. The meeting will be held at the same time and place for preliminary organization of the Capital City League senior and unlimited sections.

Maj. Fegan to Leave Marine Sports Post

Maj. Joseph C. Fegan, who has had supervision of athletic, recruiting and press relations for Marine Corps Headquarters here, will leave for Haiti about April 16 for duty with the Garde d'Haiti with the rank of colonel.

Maj. Gen. Neville, the new commandant, has decided to place Maj. Fegan's former duties under the supervision of three separate officers. Col. J. S. Turner will have charge of recruiting, Maj. D. L. S. Brewster will supervise athletic, and Capt. James H. Platt will handle all press activities.

Whippet Club Formed in Montgomery County

The Montgomery County Whippet Club was organized last night at Bethesda for the purpose of fostering and popularizing whippet racing in Montgomery County and Washington. More than 25 enthusiasts of dog racing attended the organization meeting, held in the Bethesda High School Building.

Charles W. Steers was elected president; F. H. Platt, vice president; H. W. Wiley, secretary-treasurer, and Dudley Brown, chairman of the racing committee.

The new organization plans to open a program of races some time next month. It is planned to conduct events somewhere in Montgomery County throughout the summer.

Another meeting has been scheduled to be held at the Montgomery County High School Building at Rockville on April 18 at 8 o'clock. All persons interested are invited to attend.

ALL-STARS PREPARE.

The All-Star Midget Team will practice Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Twining City diamond in preparation for their game with the Lionels Sunday at 1 o'clock on east Ellipse diamond.

All candidates for the team are requested for both the practice session and game.

LIONELS AFTER GAMES.

Both the Lionels Fives and Insect Nines have diamonds available for Saturday and will book games at West 871.

TECH READY FOR TRACK GAMES

Episcopal Meet Tomorrow Finds All But 2 in Form.

DESPITE the fact that Capt. Jake Edwards and Frank Nebel have been on the ailing list lately, the Tech Track Team is ready for the Episcopal games tomorrow, to be held at Episcopal High School in Alexandria. Both Edwards and Nebel have had sore underpinning which has forced them to idle. Both are expected to be all right, however.

Coach Hardell is not overly optimistic about his team's chances in the meet. He can not figure his men have had time to get in the proper condition, but has hopes that they will make a good showing. He places a great deal of dependence in Edwards, the great deal of dependence in Edwards, the great deal of dependence in Edwards.

Tech finished second in the Richmond meet, which was an indoor affair, and the showing of his team in this meet has kept Hardell hopeful.

Others expected to gain points for the Manual Trainers include Holmes Fountain, the dash flash; Quinn, Livingston, Gieger, Reichman and Cole.

Many familiar names will compete in the field events including Wall, in the shot-put; the Winston brothers, Austin and Leo, in the javelin; Wall and Austin Winston, in the discus, and Stutz and Rosenthal, in the pole vault.

Just how Tech finishes can be reckoned on the showings of the athletes listed below in the various events in which they are entered. The list of entries, follows:

100-yard dash—Fountain, Livingston, Quinn, Edwards.

220-yard dash—Fountain, Livingston, Quinn, Edwards.

440-yard dash—Edwards, Nebel, Geiger.

880-yard run—Reichman.

1,100-yard run—Reichman, Pope, Foster.

120-yard high hurdles—Foster.

120-yard low hurdles—Oyster, Bergen.

BASEBALL STAGES COMEBACK IN DIXIE

Thus a pitcher may be taken out and a game turned upside down when he is going quite well, merely because the umpire on the bench decides to know whether another fellow is all right or all wrong.

The Yankees are notorious for their betrayal of the small-town customers along the tour, Babe Ruth and his comrades holding the idea that a small-town dollar is a sucker dollar and refusing to exert themselves in a sincere way. But, even with these allowances, the ball teams give the patrons a better exhibition in their line than the prize fighters give in theirs when touring the same territory, and the price of admission gives no cause for indignation, however lousy the spectacle may be.

Dollar Ten Looks Good to Fans.

After Fight and Hockey Seasons.

Back in their own territory the athletes probably will notice a corresponding enthusiasm this season, except, perhaps, in the case of the Boston Braves on their home grounds, where a strange prejudice seems to have arisen against the franchise. The cities which patronize the major league teams and the prize-fight spectacles which were produced as alternate attractions in the hockey amphitheatres during the winter will be impressed by the difference in the price of admission.

The $1.10 or the $2.20 ball game at the Polo Grounds or Yankee Stadium represents a comfortable afternoon in the open, whereas a night at the hockey show, the six-day race or the prize fight meant laborious effort coming and going, to say nothing of the scheming and conniving necessary to obtain decent seats and the consummate larceny of the promoters or their scalpers or both in the scaling of prices and distribution of tickets.

For a deadly parallel I would suggest a ball game between the Yanks and Athletics or the Giants and the Cubs at no increase over the regular box office price as compared with the restraint put forth by Jack Sharkey and William Strubling in Miami Beach for a top price of $25.

The first time a ball team played with such wilful economy of effort as Willie showed in that prize fight, a grand jury indicted all concerned and the public stir over the whole affair was just a little less noisy than you would expect upon the impeachment of a President.

Clarence True Wilson.

Irish Ku Klux Klan Clamps Boycott on the Braves.

The Boston situation is a melancholy thing. Here the proprietor of the Braves, Emil Fuchs, is under a boycott of some force. It appears that when he dismissed Jack Slatery, newly engaged as manager of the Braves, and appointed Rogers Hornsby, last spring, the Irish Ku Klux Klan of Boston decided to punish him.

The unfortunate Mr. Fuchs merely wished to improve his ball club and naturally thought the Boston customers would favor the nomination of a noted ball player and former manager of a world series champion team to replace an untired and dubious experiment who chanced to have an Irish name.

However, Mr. Fuchs misjudged the public response to this and his firm suffered much last summer. The suffering probably will continue until the Braves begin to win ball games. I doubt that even so brooding a hater as an Irish Ku Klux Klan could resist the attraction of a crucial series at $1.10.

LEGION RIVALS MEET.

The Delano and Lincoln Post Nines, which will seek the American Legion series championship in conjunction with the Capital City League race, will clash on North Ellipse diamond Sunday at 1 o'clock. All candidates will be given an opportunity to show their ability in this contest, the coaches have announced.

All members of the Delano team will meet Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at Peabody School. New candidates are asked to report to George Youngblood at this meeting or on the North Ellipse diamond Sunday.

HESS NINE BUSY TODAY.

Hess A. C. tossers will be busy this week. The team will meet tonight at 2210 Shannon street southeast at 7:30 o'clock to settle all plans for the club dance Friday night at the Arlington Hotel. A practice game with the Seamen Gunners will be played this afternoon on the Navy Yard field at 5 o'clock.

YOUR BOY—YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, M. D.
The Parent Counselor.

The Tie That Binds.

THE judge had heard her story of incompatibility and cruelty. He had listened to the man's tale of half-baked potatoes and can opener cooking. She wanted $12, weekly alimony. He wanted the best way out of a bad bargain. Twice the judge had failed in effecting a reconciliation. Suddenly little Junior, age 4, who had been penned up in the waiting room of the court while the separation proceedings were taking place, broke away, ran into the courtroom and addressed his parents: "Come on home, daddy and mother, I want to play." Thereupon mother and father each took one of the boy's hands and left the courtroom.

And a little child shall lead them.

Children are chains that bind parents together. Sometimes a beautiful and light chain which twines itself around the mind and spirit of each parent and binds itself clasp in the heart of the little child. Some times a heavy, burdensome chain which each parent must wear around his heavy heart because the child, through its activities, is making it heavier and harder to bear. For some a heavy chain of pure gold is worn because the child is physically handicapped or mentally deficient.

A child often binds together a young couple who are tiring of one another. A dying, pulsating love for each other is revived when it can follow in the veins of a little new-born.

Children make life hard for some parents. Many a 50-50 marriage is strained to the breaking point by the advent of a youngster. Father says, "Let it cry its head off; you should worry." Mother replies, "You poor, little, ducky darling, tummy will give baby darling anything she wants." The battle is on to the day that Willie and Susie choose their respective colleges—even then dad still has his ideas.

Children make life easy. They take us out of ourselves. Our attack of the flu is nothing when Willie has the mumps. Our own hurt hearts are as nothing compared to comforting Willie when he is accidently hit by a ball bat. Our dead hopes rise again when Susie envisions her grand career.

Children are a nuisance when we want to stay out nights, spend a week-end at a resort or dance until the sun rises.

Children are an obligation which must be paid in full. We sign on the dotted line the acknowledgment: Received in good order and condition an article of intrinsic merit, to wit, one baby child. Said boy or girl to be held in safekeeping, to be wisely governed, to be usefully educated, and finally, to be dismissed from the care of the undersigned with capacity to go it alone.

A childish wish, "I want to go sliding" brought back to these two harassed souls the thoughts of the tie that binds and in the binding that obligates.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

1929-1718.

Are not petting parties something new in our so-called civilization? INTERESTED.

Answer—Just before your letter arrived I had been reading another letter dated March 10: "My children depart in three days and I am heartbroken at the thought. . . . My daughter's good principles are so firmly rooted, thank God, that she has been able to mix with every sort of society here without any danger of becoming smothered. But nothing like the young people of today has ever been seen. They have neither manners nor morals."

This letter was written by a gentleman in the year 1718.

Troubled—Send your address and write again.

A Holiday Party.

Four young couples have planned a Saturday party in a cottage in the woods. We didn't figure on a chaperon and mother says we can't go without one. We went once before and no harm was done. We are all nice. Mother says to write to you and see what you say. MOTHER AND DAUGHTER.

Answer—I only wish I were available as a chaperon. I would do most of the work and end up by washing the dishes. I would give the youngsters a chance to think they were absolutely alone. I should not see everything that went on. At times I would be very deaf. But when you came home you could face all conventional people. I incline to mother's view.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.
Loading of revenue freight for the cars, an increase of 6,331 cars over the preceding year, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday at its office in the Transportation Building.

This total was an increase of 18,288 cars over the same week of 1927, with the corresponding week of 1928, but a reduction of 19,493 under the same week of 1927.

The increase was due to a demand for forest products, merchandise, less than-carload freight, miscellaneous freight and ore, there being decreases in the movement of grain products, coal, coke and livestock.

All except the Southern and Northwestern districts reported increases in tonnage, the Southern being the largest, compared with the same week in 1928, but the Southwestern was the only district to announce an increase compared with

W. C. T. U. DESIRE TO JAIL RUM BUYER SHOWN BY QUERIES

Members of District Chamber Bombard Speaker With Pertinent Questions.

PROHIBITION ATTORNEY
CALLS AGENTS HEROES

Increased Penalties by Jones
Law and Immunity for Diplomats Described.

That the buyer of liquor may come under the critical eye of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, with a view of making him equally responsible with the bootlegger, was indicated at a meeting of the District of Columbia Chapter in Bethany Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon, during a forum held by Bert W. Andrews, an attorney in the legal department of the United States Prohibition Bureau.

After he had carefully explained the Jones-Stalker law, Mr. Andrews was asked a number of questions from the floor.

"Is there any hope of reaching the purchaser of liquor?" one woman asked earnestly.

"Buyer Not in the Law."

"There is no more hope now than previously," Andrews answered. "We can reach the purchaser in some cases under the national prohibition act for conspiring in transportation of liquor; for instance, if the purchaser told the bootlegger how to deliver the liquor, that would be conspiracy to transport liquor."

"But how can you get at the buyer?" another woman asked.

"The word 'buying' is not in the law," Andrews answered.

Another woman asked and said that a store in her neighborhood displays all sorts of paraphernalia for making liquor and also displayed bottles labeled "poet," "starry" and the like. How about stores selling such paraphernalia for making liquor?" she asked.

Says Proof Is Required.

"If the man sells it for the purpose of making liquor, you can convict him; but you have to prove the intent, that he knew you intended to make liquor with it. The intent controls," Andrews replied.

Another question that brought eager attention was this: "What is to be done about transportation of liquor by the mail?"

"The diplomat is immune from arrest in this country," Andrews said. "The diplomat is representative of the head of his country. We never said it was not against the law for a diplomat to transport liquor, but we have said that he is immune from arrest. He is against the law for an officer to arrest one."

Jones Law Increases Penalties.

The Jones-Stalker law's object, he said, is to increase the penalties for certain violations of the national prohibition act. These, he said, are manufacturing, sale, transportation, exportation and importation. He further said that it was the intent of Congress to make it more difficult for the courts to discriminate between casual violations and habitual violations, and to be governed accordingly. He said that the Jones-Stalker law will not operate harshly against minor offenders.

Prohibition workers are heroes," Andrews declared. "They deserve badges, chrome—any honor you want to give them. They are the heroes. They enforce the prohibition act."

A patriotic, musical and welfare program was carried out by the chapter during the day's session.

Dispute Settled At School Parley

Disagreement on Purchase of Cafeteria Material Fixed by Board.

Disagreement between school authorities and the Stern Co. over cafeteria equipment for McKinley High and six other public schools was ironed out yesterday at a conference with the District Commissioners.

The conference was held in the office of Commissioner of Education, William B. Ladd, and was attended by Mr. William B. Ladd, Commissioner of Education, Mr. John P. Morgan, superintendent of schools, and Mr. E. E. Kramer, assistant superintendent.

School authorities did not want to accept some of the equipment delivered by the contracting company and also a question as to whether the material met with specifications. Talks were called to the conference, he said, to save time and get the question settled quickly. The company agreed to change some of the equipment and to substitute other pieces more to the liking of the school authorities.

Widow Seeks $10,000 In Death of Husband

Mary E. McIntyre, administratrix of the estate of James J. McIntyre, of 1718 Twenty-fourth street, northwest, filed suit for $10,000 damages against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. yesterday at a conference with the District Commissioners.

The plaintiff, through attorneys Julius C. Martin and Claude A. Thompson, declared McIntyre was killed when he stumbled and fell from a street car loading platform, which she said was defective, at Thirtieth and F streets northwest, on April 14, 1928, and was struck by a one-man street car.

Traffic Light Plan To Guide Speakers

Authors' Breakfast of Pen Women Friday to Have Novel Feature.

Speakers at the authors' breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women at noon Friday at the Willard Hotel will be directed by a traffic light system which is to be installed for the occasion by the Traffic Bureau through the courtesy of Director William H. Mahon.

Miss Dorothy Nicholson, in uniform, will act as speech director by the showing of green, amber and red lights.

Charles M. Bush, chairman and president of the Pen Women, will preside at the breakfast. She will be assisted by Mrs. Louis M. Geldert, past national president.

The annual meeting of the league will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, with an afternoon session at 2 o'clock.

A musicale will be presented at 8:15 o'clock Saturday night in the Red Cross Building.

Victim of Gas Revived By Sight of Pulmotor

Fire Rescue Squad No. 1 yesterday afternoon revived an unconscious man by displaying its pulmotor.

William Holland, colored, 42 years old, a workman employed on a building at 2424 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was overcome by illuminating gas while working in the basement. Other employees summoned the rescue squad.

Holland regained consciousness as the squad members set up their pulmotor and oxygen tank and prepared to work on him. With a shriek, he jumped up and fled from the building, squad members reported. They followed him for a short distance, until convinced by his speed of flight that he had recovered.

CIRCUS SUCCESSFUL, DESPITE HEAVY RAIN

First of Four Performances, Under Auspices of Church Club Draws Crowd.

RARE ANIMALS EXHIBITED

It rained until the ground outside was like a swamp, but the country circus and carnival of the Men's Club of the Church of St. Stephen and Incarnation had an advantage over Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey, for not an elephant became stuck in the mud, not a tent was blown down, nor was a single performer drenched by water coming through the crevices of a canvas.

As scheduled, the big four-day circus opened last night in the parish hall at Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest. The rain did not mar the attendance, and when the grand parade began the hall was well filled.

Orchestra Furnishes Music.

Music by the National Baptist Memorial Sunday School Orchestra enlivened the occasion, while two special features were on the opening night program, the George Washington Glee Club and the DeMolay tancy drill party.

As for the circus itself, everything in the entertainment line was furnished, G. G. Stonebreaker, ringmaster, introduced a variety of acts, all of which kept the audience in constant applause. The grand parade brought out a large collection of "rare" animals, together with freaks and funny people. These, so the program stated, were gathered from the heights of the board of officers and from the fathomless depths of Foggy Bottom.

Special Troupes Perform.

Leach and Matts, the two best-dressed men in town; Bolivar, put through his paces by Little Ruth Hoberger; Roy H. Jenner, in a difficult performance on a swinging perch; Revilo, the good, bad and indifferent juggler; and the tumbling DeMolay troupe.

Adding to the carnival spirit, there was dancing on the balcony, a hall of mystery, Punch and Judy, fortune teller and country store.

The program will be repeated tonight, Thursday and Friday nights, with new attractions featuring each performance, all the shows being for the benefit of the church.

23 Girl Reserve Clubs Enroll in Song Contest

Each giving three songs as its portion of the program, 23 Girl Reserve Clubs of the junior high schools will compete tomorrow afternoon in the annual folk-song contest in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium at 4 o'clock. The winning group will appear between the acts of the Girl Reserve opera "Cinderella" on Friday and Saturday nights.

Schools which have clubs competing in this contest are Columbia, Hine, Jefferson, Langley, MacFarland, Powell, Stuart, George Mason, Dennison and Gordon.

Anniversary of Toc H. Will Be Observed Here

The third anniversary of the founding of the first Toc H. in the city will be observed tonight by a service of light in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral at 8:15 p. m. when the local Toc H. will be dedicated.

The Rev. Pat Leonard, national pastor of the Toc H. in America, will conduct the service assisted by the Rev. Albert Eastburn, padre of the Philadelphia Toc H. and some of the Cathedral clergy. One hundred men will be in the procession representing Toc H. branches in Washington, Baltimore and New York.

Miss Craig Wiley, who first brought the Toc H. idea to Washington, will light the symbolic lamp from the altar lights in the ceremony of rededication. The Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., Bishop of Washington, will preach the sermon.

$25,000 for Auto Hurt Asked of Army Major

Accused of negligent operation of a motor car, Maj. Mark E. Guerin, U. S. A., of the Fourth Corps Area, McPherson, Ga., was named yesterday in a suit for $25,000 damages filed by Howard Heckerton, of the Fifth Hall Apartments, in the District Supreme Court.

Heckerton said he was crossing the street in front of 1825 Columbia road northwest on May 24, 1927, when an automobile owned by the Army officer struck and seriously injured him.

Torrey Alvin Newmyer appeared for Heckerton.

WHITE HOUSE HELP IS SOUGHT BY ALLEN TO KEEP POLICE JOB

Patrolman Ordered Dismissed for Unwarranted Use of Service Pistol.

LAYS HIS CASE BEFORE SECRETARY AKERSON

Third Precinct Officer Leaped Into Limelight by Calling Comrades Brutal.

Policeman R. J. Allen, of the Third Precinct, under sentence by the Police Trial Board to be dismissed from the police force for unwarranted use of his pistol, yesterday asked the White House to intercede for him with the District Commissioners to whom he has formally appealed from the trial board sentence.

Allen filed his plea for assistance with George S. Akeron, secretary to President Hoover, requesting him to ask the District Commissioners to soften the trial board penalty and save him from dismissal.

Was Guard at Hoover Home.

There were no indications as to whether the White House will take any action in the matter. Allen was one of the District policemen assigned to guard Mr. Hoover when he was living here as a Republican candidate during the last campaign.

Allen has been the subject of special attention among policemen for some time, having been publicly rebuked through a speech before the policemen's association in which he charged that policemen treated prisoners brutally and beat them without justification. It is somewhat ironic that he now finds himself under sentence of dismissal because of a colored youth without justification.

Transferred After Speech.

Allen has been in hot water several times, having been transferred from the Second to the Third Precinct shortly after his brutality speech. He once was reported seated in the lounge of the Mayflower Hotel with his wife at a time he was supposed to be on his best. Another time he was charged with leaving traffic to take care of himself and concerning himself with personal matters.

What the Commissioners will do is not known. Allen asked for an oral hearing before them, but this was refused and he was given the usual test, the perfect one. Allen said that far that appeal has not been filed but Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, who has supervision of the Police Department, has been paying attention to the appeal, and the record of the trial if Allen's argument is not received in time.

Vagrant Puts Blame On Old Indian Jinx

Jailed Man Asserts Chiefs Hoodooed Him Because He Left Tribe.

When arraigned on a vagrancy charge in Police Court yesterday, John Hayes declared that he was hoodooed by the "jinx" cast upon him some years back by an Indian medicine man. The "jinx" clung to him in his prison cell.

Hayes told the court that he was part Indian, and when he left a tribe in North Dakota several years ago his going was protested by his chiefs. In order to make him stay, he said, the Indians called upon their medicine man and "jinxed" him.

Policeman William Halslip testified that Hayes had no visible means of support, no prospects of obtaining employment, and that he was a vagrant.

Judge Hitt ordered him to jail for 60 days in default of a $200 bond on the vagrancy charge. As Hayes was entering the prisoners' cell, he said, he was told by the police that he was "jinxed" and that he was a vagrant.

Policeman William Halslip testified that Hayes had no visible means of support, no prospects of obtaining employment, and that he was a vagrant.

Judge Hitt ordered him to jail for 60 days in default of a $200 bond on the vagrancy charge. As Hayes was entering the prisoners' cell, he said, he was told by the police that he was "jinxed" and that he was a vagrant.

Hayes told the court that he was part Indian, and when he left a tribe in North Dakota several years ago his going was protested by his chiefs. In order to make him stay, he said, the Indians called upon their medicine man and "jinxed" him.
